Teachers In N.O. Set Meet On Pay

Association Acts After Salary Skip

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A New Orleans Teachers association called a mass teachers meeting for Saturday after most of the city's 5,300 school employees failed to get their monthly pay on schedule Friday.

Mrs. Emma McLendon, president of the local unit of the Louisiana Teachers Association, said members petitioned for the meeting following the skipped payday.

MEMBERS OF LTA

The subject of the meeting is "The Teacher Pay Issue." About 800 New Orleans teachers are members of the LTA unit.

Asked whether members who asked for the meeting mentioned reports that teachers may not come back after the Christmas holidays until they get their salaries, Mrs. McLendon replied:
"Not officially."

Only about 100 of the city's 5,300
Four New Orleans banks bowed to a federal court order Friday and released some $728,000 of school money. A segregation-bent Legislature had frozen the funds.

The school board quickly paid about 100 employees at integrated
William Frantz and McDonogh
No. 19 schools, and administrative school board workers.

But the $728,000 was far short of the $1.9 million needed to cover the December payroll for the rest of the city's school employees. They went payless.

Some 4,000 teachers, principals and secretaries were due their December paychecks Friday for four weeks of work already put in. Another 1,500 maintenance workers and others were due weekly and semi-monthly paychecks.

The action puts teachers at the two integrated schools in a better financial position now than those at segregated schools.

An anonymous donor gave $16,000 to pay the November salaries of teachers at Frantz and Mc-Donogh. The Legislature, which

Interest Free Loans Offered N.O. Teachers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Education Association Friday offered $250,000 in interest-free loans to public school teachers in New Orleans.

Regular paychecks for the teachers were delayed by the state legislature's efforts to block school integration, but four New Orleans banks Friday released school funds on federal court orders. However, the teachers have not been paid for November and the funds released are for December salaries.

The NEA said it had set up an emergency fund to meet "individual cases of undue hardship" among members of the teaching profession in New Orleans. The loans are available to superintendents, curriculum directors and others, in addition to classroom teachers.

The amount of the loan cannot exceed the amount of the salary payment missed, the NEA said.
The association did not say when the loans should be repaid.

Despite release of $728,000 by the banks, most of the teachers in the city's segregated schools apparently will miss their December paychecks. School Supt.
James Redmond said it would take about $1.9 million to pay December salaries.

In its battle to halt court-ordered integration in New Orleans, the Louisiana Legislature withheld November salary payments from teachers at the two integrated schools — William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19. An anonymous donor gave $16,000 to meet those salaries.

After the banks released the $728,000, the December payroll at
William Frantz and McDonogh
No. 19 was paid.

Thus the teachers at the two integrated schools are up to date on their salaries.

RECORD PROSPERITY

Yule Cash Jingles Merry Europe Tune

PARIS (AP)—Christmas brings all its spirit and old traditions this year to a new Europe, the most prosperous Europe in history.

Commerce and trade everywhere profited from the biggest spending spree of all time as the Continent's busy economy began slowing Friday for a holiday weekend of feasting, praying and family cheer.

Britain reported Christmas spending up 25 per cent over last year. Germany, France, the Netherlands and even Communist Poland talk of 10 to 20 per cent increases.

They were running short of sable, mink and chinchilla in Italy. The rustle of folding money was louder than the jingle of small change in Europe this year.

Trade experts saw a political-social hue. This was not the spending of a world which says "tomorrow we die" but rather of a public full of confidence in the future.

Nowhere was this more pronounced than in Britain. The Bank of England said a new record was set for money in circulation—the best barometer of all. It totaled $4,658,045,527.

Another record was set in withdrawal of savings certificates, deposits and premium bonds—obviously for Christmas shopping. As the stores were clearing off their shelves in final sales, this figure hit $30 million.

Record Cold To Fade Out For Holidays

Normal Mercury Readings Due Christmas Day

By UPI

Record cold chilled the Christmas spirit in the nation's eastern half Friday, but weathermen promised a warmup to normal winter weather for the holidays.

Fresh snows driving across the Middle West meant an end to the sub-zero cold which had broken records for two straight days. The Christmas Day forecast was for near seasonal normals except for the Northeast, where it will stay cold.

WHITE CHRISTMAS

Earlier snow storms had already assured a white Christmas for much of the nation's eastern two thirds.

Before the warmup, Buffalo, N.Y., was isolated by a blizzard. 450 railroad passengers shivered for eight hours in a stalled train in Illinois, and Joliet, Ill., found itself the coldest town in the land with a temperature of 25 degrees below zero.

Last minute Christmas shopping was an arctic ordeal in cities from Chicago to Pittsburgh. The toll of weather-blamed deaths caused by over-exertion, cold wave fires and auto smashups mounted steadily.

A United Press International count showed 97 weather deaths in the past five days. There were 32 in Ohio, 16 in Indiana, 13 in Illinois, 11 in Florida, 6 in Michigan, 4 in Missouri, 2 each in Alabama, Kansas, Mississippi, New York State, North Dakota and Tennessee, and 1 in Pennsylvania.

In one pre-holiday tragedy, 11 children were left motherless when the car carrying Mrs. Camille Herb, 42, skidded on ice and threw her to the pavement near Valley Stream, N. Y. In another, two children were found dead in an unheated shack at Wichita, Kan.

The tragedy of June Allan, 12, of New York was a minor one. She couldn't say a word during the holidays after her tongue got stuck to a frozen metal light pole.

Widow Of Pilot Asks Overhaul Of U.S. Agency

HEMET, Calif. (AP)—An overhaul of the Federal Aviation Agency was urged Friday by the widow of a pilot killed in the Dec. 16 collision of two airliners over New York.

Patricia Sawyer wrote newspapers and members of Congress: "As the wife of one of the pilots lost in the collision over New York last week, my grief for my daughters and all the other families involved is almost overwhelming."

She criticized Gen. E. R. Quasada, head of the FAA, and what she called "one small group of military men (which) arbitrarily runs civil aviation's complex traffic controls — with the deliberate exclusion of the commercial pilots and commercial airlines."

Mrs. Sawyer said, "My husband and many of his pilot friends shared the opinion that all too often the FAA has been more interested in covering up problems than in solving them."

The widow said her husband, Robert H. Sawyer, had been flying for 20 years. He was the pilot of the DC8 jet which crashed on a Brooklyn street after colliding with a Constellation. He lived on a ranch here with his family.

Services for Sawyer were held here Thursday. Said Mrs. Sawyer, writing of what she termed the need for an FAA overhaul: "The need is desperate. For many of us, it is already too late."

Navy Stiffens Safety Steps

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy ordered a series of new and stiffer safety precautions Friday because of the fire which swept the aircraft carrier Constellation in Brooklyn this week, costing the lives of 49 construction workers.

Two of the orders applied to the handling of fuel tanks aboard ships and to the use of wooden scaffolding which figured in the Constellation disaster.

Instructions went out that fuel tanks of the kind believed to have set off the Brooklyn fire must be removed from Navy ships.

In addition, government and private shipyards were told to eliminate temporary structure below decks for use of supervisory personnel. This was interpreted to mean wooden scaffolding.

Rules Group Membership May Change

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Speaker Sam Rayburn has secretly assured President-elect John F. Kennedy that he will dynamite the logjam on liberal legislation which has been erected by a conservative GOP-Southern Democratic coalition of the House Rules Committee.

This was reported Friday by congressional sources who said Rayburn made the pledge when he talked with Kennedy at Palm Beach, Fla., this week.

HOLD CONTROL

Under the present line-up, four Republicans and two Southern Democrats hold life-and-death control over legislation in the House. The powerful rules committee serves as a parliamentary traffic cop which decides in most instances whether a bill shall be sent to the House floor for consideration. In recent sessions, it has turned thumbs down on key bills which Kennedy promised in the campaign to deliver if elected.

Congressional informants, who asked that they not be identified, said Rayburn told Kennedy that he would use his power as speaker to alter the balance of power on the 12-man committee by changing its makeup when the new Congress convenes on Jan. 3.

This could be done most easily in one of two ways.

—Rep. William A. Colmer, D-Miss., could be ousted from the committee, ostensibly because of his opposition to the Democratic presidential ticket last fall. This would cost the coalition a vote and leave the conservatives on the short end of a 7-5 lineup.

—The committee could be increased in its membership, pos-

Ike Calls Off GAO Order On Haling Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower Friday instructed the State Department to ignore an order cutting off funds for the department's Office of Inspector General because it had refused to give Congress certain foreign aid data.

Eisenhower acted on the advice of Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers who held that Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, who issued the financial stop order, had improperly interpreted the law.

The case involved perhaps the biggest collision between the White House and Congress over the issue of withholding information from the lawmakers since a similar episode during the Army-McCarthy hearings six years ago.

The issue was joined Oct. 31 when a House government operations subcommittee investigating foreign aid operations in seven South American nations demanded a series of documents concerning the department's Office of Inspector General and comptroller.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in a letter dated Nov. 25, refused to surrender the documents on grounds they were confidential and outside the realm of information to which Congress is entitled.

Mrs. Mary Frances Roark was pronounced dead from severe burns by LaSalle Parish coroner Dr. J. C. Turnely at 3 p.m. yesterday. Her daughter suffered severe burns on the hands when she attempted to put the fatal fire out.

According to investigating officers from the LaSalle Parish sheriff's department, Mrs. Roark was burning trash in the yard of her daughter's home where she was staying when her clothes caught fire.

She rushed back into the house and her daughter, Mrs. Rosie Andrews, wrapped her in a quilt in an attempt to smother the flames.

3,000 Gather For Pilgrimage To Bethlehem

JERUSALEM (AP)—Pilgrims in unprecedented numbers passed Saturday from Israel into Jordan — through the Mandelbaum Gate and over no-man's land — to gather in Old Jerusalem on this Christmas Eve for the trek to Bethlehem.

Most of the record 3,000 or so are Arab Catholics who will observe the holiday in the Judean hill town where Christ was born. Many traveled overnight to be first in line Friday when Israel and Jordan officials for the 12th consecutive year put aside their enmities long enough to allow the border crossings. The two normally closing to the uneasy armistice of 1948-49.

From Jerusalem the pilgrims walk five miles south to Bethlehem where the Church of the Nativity marks the traditional site of Christ's birth. The Grotto of the Nativity is revered as the actual place.

Outlook Warm For Christmas

Yes, Virginia there is a Santa Claus and he's coming tonight! He'll be met by some of the warmest temperatures in the past few days in the Twin Cities, as a slight trend has moved into the area.

Skies will be mostly cloudy throughout this Christmas Eve. The outlook for Christmas day is cloudy and mild with a chance of rain.

Today's temperature extremes will range from 36 to 56 degrees. Yesterday's high was 55. The low dropped to 19, breaking the record of 24 set on the previous day as the lowest of the winter.

The northeast Louisiana area counted one dead and at least seven injured in traffic mishaps Friday as numerous accidents ushered in the long Yule holiday weekend.

A Negro man was found dead and his two companions unconscious late Thursday night or early Friday morning near Bastrop and the Morehouse Parish coroner said the cause was carbon monoxide poisoning.

The dead man was identified as George Lewis of Sterlington who was on the front seat of the auto which had been backed in to a ditch.

A woman beside him, tentatively identified as Roberta Henderson of Bastrop, was taken to E.

A. Conway Memorial Hospital in Monroe, as was a man in the back seat, identified as Calus Manning Jr., of Sterlington.

Two persons were arrested on charges of reckless driving and causing an accident at Crosley and Cypress Streets in West Monroe. They were identified as V. J. Pleasant, 40, 1308 Warren Dr., West Monroe, and Catherine H. McCarty, 23, 103 Oakland, West Monroe.

No injuries were reported in the accident.

All businesses in the Twin City area were prepared for the Christmas Eve rush today while most offices closed for the three-day holiday.

Teachers In N.O. Set Meet On Pay

Association Acts After Salary Skip

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A New Orleans Teachers association called a mass teachers meeting for Saturday after most of the city's 5,500 school employees failed to get their monthly pay on schedule Friday.

Mrs. Emma McLendon, president of the local unit of the Louisiana Teachers Association, said members petitioned for the meeting following the skipped payday.

Rules Group Membership May Change

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Speaker Sam Rayburn has secretly assured President-elect John F. Kennedy that he will dynamite the logjam on liberal legislation which has been erected by a conservative GOP—Southern Democratic coalition of the House Rules Committee.

This was reported Friday by congressional sources who said Rayburn made the pledge when he talked with Kennedy at Palm Beach, Fla., this week.

HOLD CONTROL

Under the present line-up, four Republicans and two Southern Democrats hold life- and death control over legislation in the House. The powerful rules committee serves as a parliamentary traffic cop which decides in most instances whether a bill shall be sent to the House floor for consideration. In recent sessions, it has turned thumbs down on key bills which Kennedy promised in the campaign to deliver if elected.

Congressional informants, who asked that they not be identified, said Rayburn told Kennedy that he would use his power as speaker to alter the balance of power on the 12-man committee by changing its makeup when the new Congress convenes on Jan. 3.

This could be done most easily in one of two ways.

—Rep. William A. Colmer, D-Miss., could be ousted from the committee, ostensibly because of his opposition to the Democratic presidential ticket last fall. This would cost the coalition a vote and leave the conservatives on the short end of a 7-5 lineup.

—The committee could be increased in its membership, possibly by adding a Republican.

Ike Calls Off GAO Order On Halting Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower Friday instructed the State Department to ignore an order cutting off funds for the department's Office of Inspector General because it had refused to give Congress certain foreign aid data.

Eisenhower acted on the advice of Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers who held that Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, who issued the financial stop order, had improperly interpreted the law.

The case involved perhaps the biggest collision between the White House and Congress over the issue of withholding information from the lawmakers since a similar episode during the Army-McCarthy hearings six years ago.

The issue was joined Oct. 31 when a House government operations subcommittee investigating foreign aid operations in seven South American nations demanded a series of documents concerning the department's Office of Inspector General and comptroller.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in a letter dated Nov. 25, refused to surrender the documents on grounds they were confidential and outside the realm of information to which Congress is entitled.

they recalled the gripping moment of the breakaway of their ship's bow Wednesday.

Chester Reed, an oiler from Corpus Christi, Tex., said: "I was laying down in my bunk when everything started falling around me. I ran topside and saw it split. I was scared but I figured I was going to be safe. I was praying and hoping."

I. H. Hulsey, also of Corpus Christi, said the bow broke off with a loud "pop" rather than tearing away gradually.

"I just came off the admiships bridge — about 11:45 a.m. and was talking to the mate before returning to the mess hall," he said. "I heard a big pop and thought the screws—propellers—came off. There was no slow breaking up. It just popped. Everybody went into action and got the stern section of the ship battered down."

"Some of the men were nervous and some were pretty calm, but they all were sort of scared," the men all told pretty much the same story—they were surprised but not unduly frightened by their vessel's crackup. And in the ensuing hours before being airlifted from the stern section by helicopters, they fared very well.

The heat remained on in the stern section for a time, but the lights continued to burn after the heat went off. They had adequate food supplies.

None of them reported seeing what happened to the other crewmen aboard the forward part of the ship, although some of these were spotted in the water by a Coast Guard aircraft.

All the survivors expressed eagerness to get home and spend Christmas with their families. Without the accident they would have had no chance. The ship was scheduled to reach Corpus Christi on Dec. 26.

Robert J. Weeks of Savannah, Ga., a fireman-water tender, said his biggest freight was in being rescued by the helicopter.

"At first I was mighty scared of that thing," he said, "but once they got me up in the air, I was glad to be aboard."

Weeks, somewhat on the chunky side, added truthfully: "They dropped me three times on the deck before I got myself fixed in that harness."

Albert C. Buffington, 43, of Brooklyn, a deck utility man, had been working in the area where the bow split off.

He gave this account: "The bosun had given us orders from the captain to secure from work because the weather was building up. I went aft on another job. After she split, I went to my boat station to prepare for a launch. I wasn't going to launch but I was going to get it ready."

Buffington said he was aboard the Robert E. Lee during World War II on the way from Trinidad to New York when she was hit by two torpedoes. He was thrown naked into the sea and later picked up by a Navy vessel.

The Conway docked at a few minutes after 4 p.m. but it was some time later before reporter could talk with the survivors. The ship's agent sent a bus to take them to a downtown hotel to meet company representatives.

Hope was virtually abandoned for the seven crewmen who were aboard the forward section of the tanker, which capsized.

The Coast Guard directed the cutters Androscoggin and Chilul to discontinue further search for them at sunset. The Androscoggin earlier had sighted a broken life boat but no bodies. It was impossible to recover the boat and it was sunk with rifle fire.

Tugs continued their work with the wallowing stern section of the Pine Ridge. The Coast Guard cutter Cherokee was standing by until the towing operation got under way.

The tugs are the Curb and Lamberts Point.

The Androscoggin reported smoke issuing from the Pine Ridge's stack, indicating she was trying to help herself along in the towing operation.

The engines are located in the aft section of such vessels, and it was believed those aboard the Pine Ridge might be able to get them operating again.

felt the teachers should boycott the schools, had withheld the money.

Checks paid Friday means Frantz and McDonogh teachers are up to date on their salaries. Teachers at the rest of the city's schools all segregated are now behind one four-week pay period.

School Supt. James Redmond said the board would also use the newly-released funds to pay audited bills from city merchants. They total $366,000.

In addition, Redmond said, the board was starting to pay contractors for construction and renovation already completed.

The only two people not paid Friday are board attorney Samuel L. Rosenberg and Redmond. The superintendent declined explanation.

A 3-judge federal court Wednesday ordered the banks and the city of New Orleans to turn over school funds to the board. The city still holds school tax money amounting to $200,000.

For a time this week, it appeared New Orleans teachers — with the exception of those at integrated schools — would be paid by the legislature.

However, lawmakers held back paychecks after the federal court handed down contempt citations against three top state officials for interfering in integration.

Eight of 16 executive board members of the New Orleans Classroom Teachers Federation blasted the legislature for withholding the money.

"We feel that the teachers have been forced into a squeeze play and they are being made to suffer for merely doing their duty," a spokesman for the eight said.

School board president Louis G. Riecke said he did not know of anything that could be done to solve the problem of teacher pay.

Hardship cases among the unpaid teachers have been offered financial help from the National Education Association. The NEA represents teachers across the country.

Mrs. Emma McLendon, president of the New Orleans unit of the Louisiana Teachers Association, said she had been given this assurance by NEA executive secretary William G. Carr.

Schools in New Orleans began a Christmas holiday today. It will extend through Monday, Jan. 2.

Coal Output Drops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bituminous coal output dropped to 7,255,000 tons in the week ended Dec. 17 from 7,555,000 tons a week earlier and 9,569,000 tons in the same week last year, the National Coal Association reported.

offices closed for three days, not to reopen until Tuesday morning.

But policemen, firemen and other law enforcement agents remained on duty for the busy weekend. The Monroe bus department announced that city buses would not operate on Christmas Day.

Meantime, on the highways, traffic, heavy all week, began to increase yesterday as the State Police patrolled the area to prevent speeding, reckless driving and drunk driving.

Officers warned motorists to drive carefully, at the same time announcing that a sharp crackdown would come on drunk drivers. Officers will be on duty throughout the Fifth District on Christmas Day.

The car was located off Highway 373 three miles from Bastrop near Point Pleasant Road.

A motorist noticed the car and notified authorities.

The ignition key was still on and authorities theorized the occupants could not get the auto out of the ditch and decided to wait until morning to get help.

Motorists jammed highways and streets on visits to relatives and hurried to and from to pick up last minute gifts.

Heavy traffic continued to roll throughout the area late into the night and local traffic officials sounded a plea for safety.

The National Safety Council estimated that 510 Americans may be killed in motor vehicle accidents in the 73-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and will end at Midnight Monday.

The council stressed that speeding and drinking have been the foremost factors in Christmas holiday fatalities in the past.

A seven-year-old boy, Frank Dennis McEluff, of 904 Natchitoches St., West Monroe, was struck by an auto in the 900 block of Natchitoches St. about 4 p.m.

He was taken to St. Francis Hospital where examination showed he had a collarbone fracture and lacerations of the head. He was unconscious for a period.

The auto which struck the youth was driven by Walter Thomisee Jr., 41, 710 Montgomery St., West Monroe, according to the West Monroe Police Department.

Police said witnesses reported that the accident was unavoidable and no charges were filed.

Monroe police reported C. R. Newman, 65, was injured when the auto he was driving hit a power pole on South Grand Street about 3:46 p.m.

Newman, who was able to talk to officers at St. Francis, said he suffered a blackout.

State police reported a man identified only as Charles Burpo was injured in an accident in the area. He was admitted to St. Francis Hospital and was still there late last night.

Earlier, a Monroe couple were injured when the auto in which they were riding went into a ditch and hit a telephone pole in the 1500 block of Cypress in West Monroe.

Driver of the auto, Billy R. Hargis and his wife were taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Others were luckier. Three persons escaped uninjured when a Illinois Central engine hit their stalled car at the tracks intersection with N. 3rd St. in Monroe.

Taken to St. Francis Hospital and released were Conroe Nash, 87, John Canady Jr., 48, and three-year-old Andy Dell Jackson. All are Negroes, whose addresses were given as 3812 Church St., Monroe. Canady was driver of the car.

Piloting the train was L. E. Pace of Bossier City. Damages to the auto was only about $50.

The accident occurred about 1:30 p.m.

sibly by adding two liberal Democrats and one Republican. This could result in a 8-7 margin in favor of those prone to favor Kennedy programs. It is the more likely course to be followed.

A similar fight is shaping up in the Senate where northern liberals want to wage a battle for curbing the power of filibusters. Of this dispute, Sen. William A. Proxmire, D-Wis., said Friday that northern Democrats can fight to outlaw filibusters without jeopardizing Kennedy's program.

it $50 million in Britain. Nothing like it ever has been seen.

Saturday, the Continent comes to a standstill. Europe and the Scandinavian Peninsula celebrate Christmas Eve. The trees are lighted in the dim afternoon, the children receive their gifts and then join in a big family dinner.

It is a family affair. The tone in Britain was set by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip as they brought their children and other relatives together for a holiday celebration at Sandringham.

In Holland, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard feted the palace staff Friday, with the queen reading the second chapter of Luke, distributing gifts, food and drink.

In Scandinavia, from Copenhagen to Helsinki, the public spending for Christmas hit a new high. Much of it takes the form of banqueting. The smorgasbord with as many as 50 varieties of fish, meat, salads, and pastries will be larger than ever.

Reindeer meat in Lapland, lut-fish boiled in lye in Sweden, goose, cheese and marzipan in Denmark, salmon and fowl in Norway, are accompanied with skools in beer, ale, wine, schnapps, whisky and in Finland, vodka.

The stay-at-homes were far in the majority in Europe. But airlines and trains were crammed with people on their way to ski resorts. Holiday places, cashing in on the boom, were booked to the hilt.

Allied armed forces in Europe and Britain were in high Christmas gear. U.S. and British troops joined with the home folks in Britain and in Germany in Christmas festivities.

Helicopters dropped Santa Claus on both the British and U.S. armed forces at strategic bases in West Germany. British soldiers, by custom, were served tea laced with rum by their own officers—believe it or not, in bed.

The holiday weather was uncertain, what with rain, sleet and either too little snow for beauty or too much for comfort. That meant the usual highway crashes and tragedy.

KENNEDY SAYS

Vice-President To Be Kept Busy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President-elect John F. Kennedy has so doing he indirectly clarified made it clear he'll keep his vice the role of Sen. Mike Mansfield president, Lyndon B. Johnson, as the new Senate Democratic leader.

If Kennedy really taps the energy and drive of Lyndon B. Johnson with greatly widened executive duties, the tall Texan will have less time and temptation to dabble with legislative leadership.

Mansfield, slated to succeed Johnson as majority leader in the 87th Congress, is one of the most self-effacing members on Capitol Hill.

Some legislators, exposed to Johnson's effective leadership maneuvering, jumped to a conclusion weeks ago that he would be the "real" leader even though Mansfield gained the office. They felt the senator from Montana would be content to handle routine leadership duties while the new vice president made the big decisions.

There is good reason to discount this assumption, however.

First, the leader-to-be is one of the Senate's ablest members, and a top-flight expert on foreign affairs. Although quiet and scholarly, he is politically astute, and gets along well with fellow members. And he knows how to be firm when firmness is called for. As assistant leader, he has until now been overshadowed by Johnson.

Second, it's an old maxim around Capitol Hill that when a member gives up his seat and vote in the Senate he leaves his senatorial power behind. This will have a limiting effect on Johnson.

Members of the Senate "club" resent uninvited intrusion. Too much vice presidential intervention might hurt rather than help the Kennedy administration.

Third, the 52-year-old Johnson appears headed for an executive workout. Kennedy already has announced he will head the Space Advisory Council, a field in which Johnson has special knowledge, and the Government Contracts Committee, which deals with job discrimination problems.

Kennedy added that he'll use his vice president extensively in national security, defense and foreign policy areas. Along with the heavy ceremonial burden any vice president must bear, LBJ will be kept busy in the executive branch. Just how busy depends on some extent on what he makes of each assignment. Some congressmen already are saying Johnson is out to woo liberal support for a 1968 presidential bid through the chairmanship of the contracts committee. This post will give him a chance to display new leadership in efforts to eliminate discrimination against Negro workers by companies holding government contracts.

Finally, there will be a "third force" in the new leadership picture in the person of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who is to succeed Mansfield as assistant leader.

KENNEDY SAYS

Vice-President To Be Kept Busy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President-elect John F. Kennedy has so doing he indirectly clarified made it clear he'll keep his vice president, Lyndon B. Johnson, as the new Senate Democratic leader. If Kennedy really taps the energy and drive of Lyndon B. Johnson with greatly widened executive duties, the tall Texan will have less time and temptation to dabble with legislative leadership. Mansfield, slated to succeed Johnson as majority leader in the 87th Congress, is one of the most self-effacing members on Capitol Hill.

Campaign For South

Never since the Civil War has the south faced a greater crisis than now. Never have its rights been more gravely threatened. Never has there been a greater need for the south to sell its cause to the rest of the nation. Furthermore, it is likely that the south had never a greater opportunity to do so.

We refer, of course, to the fight over segregation and the fight over the rights of the individuals to choose their associates and of the states to determine their own destiny in those things which are their own separate problems.

With three branches of a socially-inclined federal government mostly against us than for us, there appears to be only one course of hope along which we can travel. If we are to win the fight for freedom of the states and the right to choose our own associates and determine our own action, we must win the approval and support of more than half the citizens (the electorate) of the nation as a whole.

Already more than half of the people in the nation, including those in the south, may believe fundamentally in states' rights and individual rights which give every citizen the right to choose his associates and groups of citizens the right to choose their associates. There is reason to believe this may be true but if it is true the sentiment in favor of the south must be crystallized into action.

Believing that the south can win, some of the supporters of states' rights are advocating a tremendous campaign throughout the nation to place before all people of this country the necessity for maintaining their freedom. They believe such a campaign, possibly equalling that of a presidential race, could make the south successful in the fight to maintain American freedom and American rights.

To carry on this campaign, its proponents think a mighty program of newspaper, television and radio advertising must be carried on and that speakers should be sent to every part of the country to enlighten the people on the priceless principles for which the south is fighting.

Such a campaign would take money. It might come from chambers of commerce, from industry and business, from individuals who believe such a drive would save this country from total socialism. If approved by the people of the different states of the south, it might come from taxes. If this is the best way to turn back socialism and the loss of states' rights and individual rights it could be well worth the cost.

One staunch supporter of such a movement, who has been striving for several years to bring it into realization, said:

"I believe the south will have to gain support from states outside the south if we are to win our fight for state sovereignty.

"We are not getting much help from outside because we have not told our story to the rest of the nation.

"The southern point of view has been grossly distorted by the controlled mass media of communication. If we can judge the future by the past, then we cannot expect the news stories that originate in New York City to present a unbiased picture of the south and what it is fighting for.

"I would like to see the southern states organize a Southern States Public Relations Council (or call it what you will), with each member state contributing a set sum to finance the activities of the council.

"I should like to see such a council buy time on the major network television stations that will give coast-to-coast coverage, and have men of stature and dignity, such as Byrd, Russell, Talmadge, talk to the nation about states' rights, the meaning of the 10th amendment, constitutional government as we conceive it to be and as the founding fathers conceived it to be, the warnings of both Jefferson and Lincoln regarding the supreme court and the dangers of its assuming dictatorial powers in this nation, and other such subjects.

"Such a program, continued as long as is necessary and pitched on a high level (not tied just to segregation-integration controversy) will, I believe, change somewhat the 'image' of the south now held by non-southerners.

"I believe there is latent good will toward us in the rest of the union, but we will have to make a bid for it—and that we have not done. Unless we do, we shall lose this fight by default, and the nation, as well as the south will suffer.

"More and bigger centralized government will be the inevitable result, unless we can stem the tide.

"But the job is too big for the south alone. We need help from other states and we need to sell them on the idea that our fight is their fight."

The south was unable to win the Civil War, by force of arms, because it was greatly outnumbered, both in states, men and weapons. It will never be able to change the course of congress and the supreme court if it attempts to do so alone, no matter how fervent the people may be nor how strongly they resist the encroachment upon individual and states' rights.

There are more vote-hunting politicians in other states than there are in the south. As long as the people in those states remain voiceless and inactive while the politicians court the votes of the Negroes most of the northern politicians will use their influence in behalf of usurpation of state and individual rights. Only when the people outside the south realize they are losing their heritage and that they are not even getting a mess of pottage for it will we have a chance to elect congressmen who will uphold the constitution and American freedom and who will set the United States supreme court back on its heels and make it stop acting as a lawmaking and policy-setting body for the whole nation.

If a giant campaign of the kind proposed can sell the people of states outside the south on the great necessity for preserving our freedom we may do the greatest service to this country since the constitution and the bill of rights were adopted.

The recount, carried on as a leisurely second examination, brought a change one way or another in the total in virtually all of the 23 counties.

If the counts in 23 Oklahoma counties, in their inaccuracy, reveal a nationwide situation, there is no telling what the result might have been if the votes for presidential were counted accurately. In a race as close as that, with inaccuracies in virtually every county, the whole story might have been changed by a recount.

Vote-Counting Errors

If precinct and parish (county) election officials in Louisiana and elsewhere in the nation are on a par with those in one part of Oklahoma in the matter of honesty and efficiency, the accuracy of our election system seems to be in doubt.

In Oklahoma's sixth congressional district, the original vote-counting was knocked into a cocked hat by a recount. Victor Wick-ersham, apparently the loser by 188 votes in the official count from 23 counties of the district, demanded and got a recount. The new count indicates him to have

Immigration Fight Likely

Incoming Kennedy Administration Will Face Uphill Battle In Congress If Liberalization Is Sought

The incoming Kennedy administration will face an uphill battle with Congress next year if it tries to carry out the Democratic party platform pledge to liberalize present immigration legislation.

Despite growing pressure to abolish the quota system for admitting foreign born into the country, Congress isn't likely to make any drastic changes in the laws affecting immigration and naturalization.

The Democratic platform drafted at the Los Angeles convention last summer denounced the national origin system of limiting immigration as contradictory to the founding principles of the nation.

It expressed confidence a Democratic president and Congress would make liberal changes in the law to permit a greater number of immigrants, especially refugees, into the country.

Advocates of increased immigration contend our current laws hurt U. S. prestige abroad. They argue this country should offer opportunities to the thousands of homeless abroad and release population pressures in overcrowded lands.

Opponents to this "open the gates" policy point out that dropping the barriers to immigrants would do little to alleviate conditions in overpopulated and underdeveloped countries.

One group, the American Enterprise Association, made a survey of the immigration question with regard to its effect on underdeveloped nations and concluded that private U. S. capital invested abroad would do more good.

The AEA, a non-partisan research organization which studies national problems, examined the "open the gates" policy and made these observations:

1. The problem of overpopulation, which is largely confined to Asian countries, could be moderated to a measurable extent only by a volume of immigration which cannot conceivably be acceptable to the American people.

2. The industrial growth in post-war Europe is such that the problem of overpopulation is being eased gradually through intra-European mobility of capital and labor.

3. In view of this country's 130 million population, the contributions that new immigrants might make on U. S. social and economic development would be only marginal at best.

4. Compared with the Soviet Union which for all practical purposes admits no aliens on a regular or systematic basis, U. S. immigration policies are generous.

The AEA study, made by Dr. Virgil Salera of Alameda State College in California, also deduced the arguments that present U. S. laws on immigration are discriminatory.

It points out that Congress passed the first general law regulating immigration in 1882. The legislation excluded paupers, criminals and other aliens deemed undesirable because of health or a record of penal service.

The same year saw the first Chinese exclusion law, which remained on the statute books until it was repealed in 1943. Three years later in 1885 Congress prohibited alien contract labor which put an end to mass influx of aliens indentured to an employer.

As the survey points out, the history of immigration laws in the U. S. shows that Congress has always been selective about who it lets into this country.

In 1891 it passed a bill providing for the exclusion of additional category of aliens on health grounds and of persons convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude.

A bill vetoed by President Cleveland in 1897 would have barred immigrants failing a compulsory literacy test. Similar bills were subsequently vetoed by Presidents Taft and Wilson but the will of Congress prevailed in 1917 when it overrode Wilson's veto.

Although the 1917 immigration bill does not operate in terms of quantitative restrictions, it proved, nevertheless, to be restrictive by extending the government's power to exclude and deport. Among other things, it established an Asiatic zone from which persons could not enter as immigrants.

Daily Meditation

When they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts. — Matthew 2:11.

In our giving and getting at this Christmas season, we should remember that it is still more blessed to give than to receive. The habit of gift-swapping and the sending of cards expressing love and goodwill to friends and relatives is not improper. But we should remember that the true spirit of Christmas goes far beyond these customary exchanges and that love of God and Christ calls for real sacrifice in meeting the needs of the church and the unfortunate around us. We can present our gifts to Christ through others.

Father, make us conscious of our kinship with Thee and Christ that we may truly reflect Thy love and kindness. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

DEAR SANTA

THIS note upon my fireplace... From all of us to you... Is for a Merry Christmas Day... We thank you for the gifts that lie... Beneath the lighted tree... And all the joys about the house... There are for us to see... These precious moments in our lives... With us will long abide... And any tears of happiness... We shall not seek to hide... Some say you are a fairy tale... We somehow have come by... But all the facts point up that you... Come down from heaven high... So let them claim what they may wish... In their belief or cause... So far we may be concerned... There is a Santa Claus.

'Spoils System'

Only About 5,000 Federal Employees Likely To Lose Jobs

The vast majority of the 2.3 million federal employees will not be affected by the forthcoming change in administration. Since adoption of the Civil Service act in 1933, career government employees have been immune to the vagaries of politics, otherwise known as the "spoils system."

However, there are some 5,000 federal employees who are not protected by Civil Service. Many of these are in policy making jobs, but the list also includes Federal district attorneys, U. S. marshals and deputy marshals and certain so-called "excepted" positions.

While up to now the spotlight has centered on Senator Kennedy's selection of cabinet officers, the cream of the appointive positions, some of the president-elect's close advisers, headed by his brother-in-law, Sargeant Shriver, Jr. 45, are carefully screening candidates for the other positions of responsibility in an effort to assure the incoming president of an effective, smooth-working team to help in carrying out his program.

That this is no easy task was proven last week by Adlai Stevenson's stalling over acceptance of the high post offered him by Kennedy.

That of U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations Stevenson asked for time to think over the offer, and it is generally conceded that his acceptance was contingent upon Kennedy's selection of a Secretary of State. The day Kennedy named Dean Rusk Secretary of State, he also announced that Stevenson had accepted the UN Ambassadorship.

Hence the job of assembling the team goes beyond the selection of persons sympathetic to Kennedy's over-all objectives, and must include such human elements as compatibility and mutual confidence, especially for jobs so closely related in their broad objectives as those of Secretary of State and UN Ambassador.

At the state level, patronage jobs available to the new administration include all U. S. District Attorneys, assistant district attorneys, U. S. Marshalls, certain port officials in coastal states such as collectors of customs and comptroller, and ranking officials in regional offices of various Government agencies including Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, and the Federal Housing Administration.

Also the new President will have the opportunity to fill existing vacancies in Federal Judgeships, considered the number-one patronage plums within the states, and also Postmaster vacancies.

Appointments to both judgeships and postmasterships are for life. However, as vacancies occur, the President in office usually names successor from the ranks of his own party. At the present time there are 11 U. S. District Judgeships vacant, plus Judgeships on two Circuit Courts and one Judge for the District of Columbia. There are approximately 3,000 postmaster vacancies, including first, second, third and fourth class positions.

The President himself names first and second class postmasters and all must be confirmed by the Senate, with the exception of fourth class postmasters, who are appointed by the Postmaster General in cooperation with the local party leadership.

The ability to work with others is one of six standards applicants must meet in order to qualify for top jobs in the new administration. The other five standards are: Judgement, toughness, integrity, industry, and devotion to the principles of the President-elect.

Interviewers at the Democratic National Committee, and others who are helping with the vital problem of selecting an effective team, are instructed to evaluate applicants on each of the six standards. If the interviewers have any reservations about an applicant's suitability on any one or more of these points, they are to note it on the single sheet used for the screening process.

However, a spokesman close to Senator Kennedy said the two basic criteria applicants must meet are "ability and loyalty to the President-elect." "Those who have worked closely with Senator Kennedy are familiar with the personality traits and ideas compatible to him," he added.

Robert Kennedy, who managed his brother's campaign, will review all applicant evaluations before they are finally passed on to the incoming President.

In addition to evaluating each applicant, interviewers are asked to answer these questions:

1. How do you happen to know this man?

2. Are there any attitudes or prejudices that we should know about?

3. Does he know other qualified people in his own field or specialty? (On this question the interviewer must check whether the applicant has wide or limited acquaintance, or whether he has only local contacts.)

4. Would his appointment to a Government position enhance the Administration's status? (Here again, the interviewer must check whether the applicant would lend status nationally, in his professional group, in his state or only in his community.)

Each applicant must supply information on his current income, education and background, political activity and special qualifications. Also he must provide five references and the names of three persons who have recommended him.

School Bus Cost

Lack Of Transportation Called Bottleneck To Pupil Safety

Lack of school buses is a critical bottleneck to pupil safety — and sensible financing is the key. Before taking off on my annual vacation I interviewed a select group of America's leading industrialists on problems which are frontpage in many communities. Today's interview is with NEWTON GLEKEL, PRESIDENT OF DIVCO - WAYNE CORP., largest U. S. producer of specialty vehicles, including more than one-third of all school buses.

Q. PORTER: The National Safety Council reports there were more than 7,000 school bus accidents last year, an average of nearly 50 every school day. More than 2,000 students were injured; on average more than one a week were killed. As a leader in the school bus manufacturing field, how do you view this?

A. GLEKEL: The dilemma facing educators is that all are desperately in need of immediate assistance. Teachers do deserve better salaries. We really must have more school buildings. We need better teaching methods and more effective teaching aids. As a bus manufacturer, however, I am acutely aware of a life-and-death urgency about the transportation problem that makes it more critical than others.

Because many schools have been forced to neglect pupil transportation in favor of other necessities, many school transports are rolling death traps. No one will deny that buses built for 40 should not carry 80 passengers. Yet many across the country are chronically overcrowded. Nor will many insist that, simply because a bus is built to be able to run for 30 years, it should. Still, many school buses are dangerously antiquated and inadequate.

Q. PORTER: The safety problem merely aggravates schools' transportation dilemma. What can schools do about it if they cannot afford more buses?

A. GLEKEL: They can take a tip from private industry on long term financing. Last year in Pinconning, Mich., for example, the local school board did a full scale economic survey of its equipment needs and developed a program for meeting them. Just as most schools do with building programs. Pinconning laid out a time payment program to get all the buses it needed immediately, and budgeted payments over succeeding years as the money becomes available.

Q. PORTER: Is this an unusual solution for schools?

A. GLEKEL: In large part, yes. But outmoded laws are merely symptomatic of outmoded thinking. Far-sighted school boards in many parts of the country are buying different forms of automotive equipment that uniquely fit their special modern needs — for instance, smaller "compact" buses for use on sparsely settled rural routes and for handicapped children, which have eliminated the use of expensive 40-60 passenger buses for 12-20 pupil loads. Despite the obvious advantages of these new models many school boards are restricted to specifications written 30 years ago, and never changed.

Q. PORTER: Do you think these problems can be solved?

A. GLEKEL: In 1947 less than half the buses sold in the U. S. were for school use. More than 65 per cent of all buses sold last year were school transits. There were 163,000 school buses on the road this year. There will be an estimated 200,000 of them on the road by 1965. With a load of this magnitude, we cannot think in terms of whether the problem can be solved. It must.

Q. PORTER: Is uniform legislation throughout the country the major obstacle to solving school financing?

A. GLEKEL: In large part, yes. But outmoded laws are merely symptomatic of outmoded thinking. Far-sighted school boards in many parts of the country are buying different forms of automotive equipment that uniquely fit their special modern needs — for instance, smaller "compact" buses for use on sparsely settled rural routes and for handicapped children, which have eliminated the use of expensive 40-60 passenger buses for 12-20 pupil loads. Despite the obvious advantages of these new models many school boards are restricted to specifications written 30 years ago, and never changed.

Q. PORTER: Is this an unusual solution for schools?

A. GLEKEL: In many places it is, indeed. It can be very effective, but the complexity of school financing law and the lack

There is reason to believe this may be true but if it is true the sentiment in favor of the south must be crystalized into action.

Believing that the south can win, some of the supporters of states' rights are advocating a tremendous campaign throughout the nation to place before all people of this country the necessity for maintaining their freedom. They believe such a campaign, possibly equalling that of a presidential race, could make the south successful in the fight to maintain American freedom and American rights.

To carry on this campaign, its proponents think a mighty program of newspaper, television and radio advertising must be carried on and that speakers should be sent to every part of the country to enlighten the people on the priceless principles for which the south is fighting.

Such a campaign would take money. It might come from chambers of commerce, from industry and business, from individuals who believe such a drive would save this country from total socialism. If approved by the people of the different states of the south, it might come from taxes. If this is the best way to turn back socialism and the loss of states' rights and individual rights it could be well worth the cost.

One staunch supporter of such a movement, who has been striving for several years to bring it into realization, said:

"I believe the south will have to gain support from states outside the south if we are to win our fight for state sovereignty.

"We are not getting much help from outside because we have not told our story to the rest of the nation.

"The southern point of view has been grossly distorted by the controlled mass media of communication. If we can judge the future by the past, then we cannot expect the news stories that originate in New York City to present a unbiased picture of the south and what it is fighting for.

"I would like to see the southern states organize a Southern States Public Relations Council (or call it what you will), with each member state contributing a set sum to finance the activities of the council.

"I should like to see such a council buy time on the major network television stations that will give coast-to-coast coverage, and have men of stature and dignity, such as Byrd, Russell, Talmadge, talk to the nation about states' rights, the meaning of the 10th amendment, constitutional government as we conceive it to be and as the founding fathers conceived it to be, the warnings of both Jefferson and Lincoln regarding the supreme court and the dangers of its assuming dictatorial powers in this nation, and other such subjects.

"Such a program, continued as long as is necessary and pitched on a high level (not tied just to segregation-integration controversy) will, I believe, change somewhat the "image" of the south now held by non-southerners.

"I believe there is latent good will toward us in the rest of the union, but we will have to make a bid for it—and that we have not done. Unless we do, we shall lose this fight by default, and the nation, as well as the south will suffer.

"More and bigger centralized government will be the inevitable result, unless we can stem the tide.

"But the job is too big for the south alone. We need help from other states and we need to sell them on the idea that our fight is their fight."

The south was unable to win the Civil War, by force of arms, because it was greatly outnumbered, both in states, men and weapons. It will never be able to change the course of congress and the supreme court if it attempts to do so alone, no matter how fervent the people may be nor how strongly they resist the encroachment upon individual and states' rights.

There are more vote-hunting politicians in other states than there are in the south. As long as the people in those states remain voiceless and inactive while the politicians court the votes of the Negroes most of the northern politicians will use their influence in behalf of usurpation of state and individual rights. Only when the people outside the south realize they are losing their heritage and that they are not even getting a mess of pottage for it will we have a chance to elect congressmen who will uphold the constitution and American freedom and who will set the United States supreme court back on its heels and make it stop acting as a lawmaking and policy-setting body for the whole nation.

If a giant campaign of the kind proposed can sell the people of states outside the south on the great necessity for preserving our freedom we may do the greatest service to this country since the constitution and the bill of rights were adopted.

Vote-Counting Errors

If precinct and parish (county) election officials in Louisiana and elsewhere in the nation are on a par with those in one part of Oklahoma in the matter of honesty and efficiency, the accuracy of our election system seems to be in doubt.

In Oklahoma's sixth congressional district, the original vote-counting was knocked into a cocked hat by a recount. Victor Wickersham, apparently the loser by 188 votes in the official count from 23 counties of the district, demanded and got a recount. The new count indicates him to have been a winner by 77 votes.

The recount, carried on as a leisurely second examination, brought a change one way or another in the total in virtually all of the 23 counties.

If the counts in 23 Oklahoma counties, in their inaccuracy, reveal a nationwide situation, there is no telling what the result might have been if the votes for president had been counted accurately. In a race as close as that, with inaccuracies in virtually every county, the whole story might have been changed by a recount.

Immigration Fight Likely

Incoming Kennedy Administration Will Face Uphill Battle In Congress If Liberalization Is Sought

The incoming Kennedy administration will face an uphill battle with Congress next year if it tries to carry out the Democratic party platform pledge to liberalize present immigration legislation.

Despite growing pressure to abolish the quota system for admitting foreign born into the country, Congress isn't likely to make any drastic changes in the laws effecting immigration and naturalization.

The Democratic platform drafted at the Los Angeles convention last summer denounced the national origin system of limiting immigration as contradictory to the founding principles of the nation.

It expressed confidence a Democratic president and Congress would make liberal changes in the law to permit a greater number of immigrants, especially refugees, into the country.

Advocates of increased immigration contend our current laws hurt U. S. prestige abroad. They argue this country should offer opportunities to the thousands of homeless abroad and release population pressures in overcrowded lands.

Opponents to this "open the gates" policy point out that dropping the barriers to immigrants would do little to alleviate conditions in overpopulated and underdeveloped countries.

One group, the American Enterprise Association, made a survey of the immigration question with regard to its effect on underdeveloped nations and concluded that private U. S. capital invested abroad would do more good.

The AEA, a non-partisan research organization which studies national problems, examined the "open the gates" policy and made these observations:

1. The problem of overpopulation, which is largely confined to Asian countries, could be moderated to a measurable extent only by a volume of immigration which cannot conceivably be acceptable to the American people.

2. The industrial growth in post-war Europe is such that the problem of overpopulation is being eased gradually through intra-European mobility of capital and labor.

3. In view of this country's 130 million population, the contributions that new immigrants might make on U. S. social and economic development would be only marginal at best.

4. Compared with the Soviet Union which for all practical purposes admits no aliens on a regular or systematic basis, U. S. immigration policies are generous.

The AEA study, made by Dr. Virgil Salera of Alameda State College in California, also debunks the arguments that present U. S. laws on immigration are discriminatory.

It points out that Congress passed the first general law regulating immigration in 1882. The legislation excluded paupers, criminals and other aliens deemed undesirable because of health or a record of penal service.

The same year saw the first Chinese exclusion law, which remained on the statute books until it was repealed in 1943. Three years later in 1885 Congress prohibited alien contract labor which put an end to mass influx of aliens indentured to an employer.

As the survey points out, the history of immigration laws in the U. S. shows that Congress has always been selective about who it lets into this country.

In 1891 it passed a bill providing for the exclusion of additional category of aliens on health grounds and of persons convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude.

A bill vetoed by President Cleveland in 1897 would have barred immigrants failing a compulsory literacy test. Similar bills were subsequently vetoed by Presidents Taft and Wilson but the will of Congress prevailed in 1917 when it overrode Wilson's veto.

Although the 1917 immigration bill does not operate in terms of quantitative restrictions, it provided, nevertheless, to be restrictive by extending the government's power to exclude and deport. Among other things, it established an Asiatic zone from which persons could not enter as immigrants.

Daily Meditation

When they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts. — Matthew 2:11.

In our giving and getting at this Christmas season, we should remember that it is still more blessed to give than to receive. The habit of gift - swapping and the sending of cards expressing love and goodwill to friends and relatives is not improper. But we should remember that the true spirit of Christmas goes far beyond these customary exchanges and that love of God and Christ calls for real sacrifice in meeting the needs of the church and the unfortunate around us. We can present our gifts to Christ through others.

Father, make us conscious of our kinship with Thee and Christ that we may truly reflect Thy love and kindness. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

DEAR SANTA

THIS note upon my fireplace ... From all of us to you ... Is for a Merry Christmas Day ... And Happy New Year, too ... We thank you for the gifts that lie ... Beneath the lighted tree ... And all the joys about the house ... There are for us to see ... These precious moments in our lives ... With us will long abide ... And any tears of happiness ... We shall not seek to hide ... Some say you are a fairy tale ... We somehow have come by ... But all the facts point up that you ... Come down from heaven high ... So let them claim what they may wish ... In their belief or cause ... So far we may be concerned ... There is a Santa Claus.

'Spoils System'

Only About 5,000 Federal Employees

Likely To Lose Jobs

The vast majority of the 2.3 million federal employees will not be affected by the forthcoming change in administration. Since adoption of the Civil Service act in 1883, career government employees have been immune to the vagaries of politics, otherwise known as the "spoils system."

However, there are some 5,000 federal employees who are not protected by Civil Service. Many of these are in policy making jobs, but the list also includes Federal district attorneys, U. S. marshals and deputy marshals and certain so-called "excepted" positions.

While up to now the spotlight has centered on Senator Kennedy's selection of cabinet officers, the cream of the appointive positions, some of the president-elect's close advisers, headed by his brother-in-law, Sargeant Shriver, Jr. 45, are carefully screening candidates for the other positions of responsibility in an effort to assure the incoming president of an effective, smooth-working team to help in carrying out his program.

That this is no easy task was proven last week by Adlai Stevenson's stalling over acceptance of the high post offered him by Kennedy — that of U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations. Stevenson asked for time to think over the offer, and it is generally conceded that his acceptance was contingent upon Kennedy's selection of a Secretary of State. The day Kennedy named Dean Rusk Secretary of State, he also announced that Stevenson had accepted the UN Ambassadorship.

Hence the job of assembling the team goes beyond the selection of persons sympathetic to Kennedy's over-all objectives, and must include such human elements as compatibility and mutual confidence, especially for jobs so closely related in their broad objectives as those of Secretary of State and UN Ambassador.

At the state level, patronage jobs available to the new administration include all U. S. District Attorneys, assistant District Attorneys, U. S. Marshalls, certain post officials in coastal states such as collectors of customs and comptroller, and ranking officials in regional offices of various Government agencies including Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, and the Federal Housing Administration.

Also the new President will have the opportunity to fill existing vacancies in Federal Judiciary, considered the number-one patronage plums within the states, and also Postmaster vacancies.

Appointments to both judgeships and postmasterships are for life. However, as vacancies occur, the President in office usually names successor from the ranks of his own party. At the present time there are 11 U. S. District Judgeships vacant, plus judgeships on two Circuit Courts and one Judge for the District of Columbia. There are approximately 3,000 postmaster vacancies, including first, second, third and fourth class positions.

The President himself names first and second class postmasters and all must be confirmed by the Senate, with the exception of fourth class postmasters, who are appointed by the Postmaster General in cooperation with the local party leadership.

The ability to work with others is one of six standards applicants must meet in order to qualify for top jobs in the new administration. The other five standards are: Judgement, toughness, integrity, industry, and devotion to the principles of the President-elect.

Interviewers at the Democratic National Committee, and others who are helping with the vital problem of selecting an effective team, are instructed to evaluate applicants on each of the six standards. If the interviewers have any reservations about an applicant's suitability on any one or more of these points, they are to note it on the single sheet used for the screening process.

However, a spokesman close to Senator Kennedy said the two basic criteria applicants must meet are "ability and loyalty to the President-elect." "Those who have worked closely with Senator Kennedy are familiar with his personality traits and ideas compatible to him," he added.

Robert Kennedy, who managed his brother's campaign, will review all applicant evaluations before they are finally passed on to the incoming President.

In addition to evaluating each applicant, interviewer are asked to answer these questions:

1. How do you happen to know this man?

2. Are there any attitudes or prejudices that we should know about?

3. Does he know other qualified people in his own field or specialty? (On this question the interviewer must check whether the applicant has wide or limited acquaintanceship, or whether he has only local contacts.)

4. Would his appointment to a Government position enhance the Administration's status? (Here again, the interviewer must check whether the applicant would lend status nationally, in his professional group, in his state or only in his community.)

Each applicant must supply information on his current income, education and background, political activity and special qualifications. Also he must provide five references and the names of three persons who have recommended him.

SYLVIA PORTER

School Bus Cost

Lack Of Transportation Called Bottleneck To Pupil Safety

Lack of school buses is a critical bottleneck to pupil safety — and sensible financing is the key. Before taking off on my annual vacation I interviewed a select group of America's leading industrialists on problems which are frontpage in many communities. Today's interview is with NEWTON GLEKEL, PRESIDENT OF DIVCO - WAYNE CORP., largest U. S. producer of specialty vehicles, including more than one-third of all school buses.

Q. PORTER: The National Safety Council reports there were more than 7,000 school bus accidents last year, an average of nearly 50 every school day. More than 2,000 students were injured; on average more than one a week were killed. As a leader in the school bus manufacturing field, how do you view this?

A. GLEKEL: The dilemma facing educators is that all are desperately in need of immediate assistance. Teachers do deserve better salaries. We really must have more school buildings. We need better teaching methods and more effective teaching aids. As a bus manufacturer, however, I am acutely aware of a life-and-death urgency about the transportation problem that makes it more critical than others.

Because many schools have been forced to neglect pupil transportation in favor of other necessities, many school transports are rolling death traps. No one will deny that buses built for 40 should not carry 80 passengers. Yet many across the country are chronically overcrowded. Nor will many insist that, simply because a bus is built to be able to run for 30 years, it should. Still, many school buses are dangerously antiquated and inadequate.

Q. PORTER: The safety problem merely aggravates schools' transportation dilemma. What can schools do about it if they cannot afford more buses?

A. GLEKEL: They can take a tip from private industry on long term financing. Last year in Pinconning, Mich., for example, the local school board did a full scale economic survey of its equipment needs and developed a program for meeting them. Just as most schools do with building programs. Pinconning laid out a time payment program to get all the buses it needed immediately, and budgeted payments over succeeding years as the money becomes available.

Q. PORTER: Is this an unusual solution for schools?

A. GLEKEL: In many places it is, indeed. It can be very effective, but the complexity of school financing law and the lack of uniformity between state regulations, much less local restrictions made this an enormously difficult undertaking. If state legislatures made a real effort to provide realistic and uniform regulations on long term financing of school equipment, many manufacturers could make it easier for schools to meet their needs for all kinds of equipment, not only buses.

Q. PORTER: Is uniform legislation throughout the country the major obstacle to solving school financing?

A. GLEKEL: In large part, yes. But outmoded laws are merely symptomatic of outmoded thinking. Farsighted school boards in many parts of the country are buying different forms of automotive equipment that uniquely fit their special modern needs — for instance, smaller "compact" buses for use on sparsely settled rural routes and for handicapped children, which have eliminated the use of expensive 40-60 passenger buses for 12-20 pupil loads. Despite the obvious advantages of these new models many school boards are restricted to specifications written 30 years ago, and never changed.

Q. PORTER: Do you think these problems can be solved?

A. GLEKEL: In 1947 less than half the buses sold in the U.S. were for school use. More than 86 per cent of all buses sold last year were school transports. There were 163,000 school buses on the road this year. There will be an estimated 200,000 of them on the road by 1965. With a load of this magnitude, we cannot think in terms of whether the problem can be solved. It must.

WOMEN'S GROUP

Monroe's B&PW Established Club

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles on service organizations and civic clubs in the Twin Cities. Today's article is about the Monroe Business and Professional Women's Club.

By JIM ROBERTSON
World Staff Writer

The Monroe Business and Professional Women's Club is one of the oldest service organizations in the area.

It was established in 1922 shortly after World War I when the need for coordinated woman power as well as man-power became evident. Secretary of War, Newton Baker had sent out an urgent call to make this woman power available for the war effort.

In subsequent investigation the War Department learned that the women of the nation were already organized in so far as religious, cultural and fraternal groups were concerned. The only group that wasn't organized were the business and professional women.

Their response in the war effort was so prompt and efficient during the crisis that the potential power of a thoroughly mobilized business women's group was recognized immediately by the leaders of the nation.

SURVEY
This disclosure resulted in a quiet but rapid survey as to the status of business and professional women by the War Work Council, a group which had been formed to further the war effort of women.

It was discovered there were many women in all states who were keenly aware of the need for a consolidation of the power of the business and professional woman. With the assistance of the War Work Council plans were made for an organizational meeting to be held in St. Louis, Mo., July, 1919. There were 400 women present at this convention. The group adopted a constitution and its objectives were named.

At present it is the largest organization in the world devoted to the interest of business and professional women.

Its objectives are: 1. To elevate the standards for women in business and in the professions. 2. To promote the interests of business and professional women. 3. To bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States. 4. To extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along the line of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

At the present time the Business and Professional Women's Clubs in the United States number over 180,000 members. The International Federation of B&PW Clubs is composed of 15 countries.

On the national level the organization devotes itself to the support of exchange students, a full-time representative at the United Nations and in Washington to interpret legislation pertaining to employed women.

The local club maintains a revolving fund to make loans to young women for educational purposes, at a low rate of interest; dresses dolls for the Salvation Army each Christmas and donates to a Chinese nursing fund.

It has been contributing to the nursing fund for the past 20 years. The project has assisted in the construction of hospitals and training of nurses. At present the work is now going on in Formosa. Several years ago the Monroe B&PW Club built a $1500 Girl Scout Hut at Pinewood Camp near Stirling.

The Monroe club has 72 members. They meet the second Tuesday of every month at the Frances Hotel at 6 p.m. and the fourth Tuesday of the month is devoted to a program meeting at the YWCA Building at 7:30 p.m.

From 1930 to 1940 the club owned the YWCA Building and operated a tea room and rented some of the rooms in the old mansion.

There are still three charter members who are active in the group. Miss Edith Gundy, Miss Mary O'Kelly and Mrs. Laura Slaton were among the original group that organized the club in Monroe in 1921.

The club is supported by membership dues and fund raising activities such as fruit cake, Christmas cards and candy sales. Charter member Laura Slaton said that in "the olden days we also had bingo games but that's all gone now."

Trio Injured Near Ruston In Collision

RUSTON (Special) — Three members of a Taylorville, Ill., family were injured Thursday night when they plowed into the rear of a parked, unlighted auto near Dubach.

The accident occurred just south of the D'Arbonne Bayou bridge on U. S. 167.

Injured were Mrs. Myrtle Swope, 52, her husband Clarence Swope, 56, and their 19-year old daughter Louise, all of Taylorville.

The parked auto, driven by Joseph L. Simmons, Benton, Ark., caught fire and burned both inside and out following the impact, state troopers reported.

The Lincoln Parish Sheriff's office got a telephone call from a passing motorist, almost simultaneously with the call telling of the crash, reporting a car parked without lights near the D'Arbonne bridge.

Simmons, who gave his address as both Monroe and Benton, Ark., was booked with a charge of driving while intoxicated and with simple obstruction of the highway.

Mrs. Swope sustained a bruised right leg and chest injuries. Louise Swope sustained cuts to the right side of her face, a bruised right leg and ankle injuries. The husband had a cut over and below his right eye, and chest injuries.

Dr. Marvin Green, who examined the three at Ruston Hospital, said he did not believe any was seriously injured.

Mrs. Swope's clothing ignited from the blaze, presumed started from a burst gasoline tank in the wreck. She was heavily clothed and apparently was not burned before she smothered the fire. Simmons claimed he was driving along the highway and that the Swope vehicle slammed into him.

The only member of the Swope family able to talk last night, Louise, said that the car was parked without lights. She said she did not see a driver in the car.

All the interior of the Simmons car as well as the exterior, burned. A front tire on the Swope car burned. Officers at first believed that Simmons was burned inside the vehicle. However, he was sighted shortly after arrival of state police, walking along the road several hundred yards from the scene. It is not known whether he left the car after the accident or before the accident, state troopers said.

The Swope family was on their way to Sulphur for a Christmas visit with a son.

Girl Seriously Ill Gets Wish For Christmas

HARDY, Va. (UPI) — A little girl, seriously ill and hoping for lots of Christmas cards, got 10,000 of them Friday.

Dorothy Ridgeway, 9, a bright-eyed fourth grader, has a bone disease that may eventually prove fatal. Her father, John Henry Ridgeway, a woodcutter, said Dorothy's only Christmas wish was for mail.

The U.S. Weather Bureau heard about Dorothy and put her wish on its teleprinter wires.

The wish came true Friday, when the postman delivered three big bags, each bulging with about 3,000 letters, and another thousand loose letters and packages.

What Dorothy didn't know is that there's a lot more to come. The U.S. Army Transportation Command, a couple of airlines and a group of factory workers in England had yet to be heard from in this little Western Virginia mountain town.

Sgt. Joseph F. Witskin of the Transportation Command at Ft. Eustis, Va., decided to do something for Dorothy. He and other soldiers donated two large dolls, a dozen small ones, seven bushels of canned and packaged foods, five bushels of fruit and four sacks of potatoes for the Ridgeway family.

Witskin also arranged to have an Army plane fly the gifts to Roanoke Saturday where Army trucks will take them to Hardy.

Monroe Postal Personnel Will Continue Work

The stamp and parcel post windows at the Monroe post office will remain open this afternoon, "as long as the need justifies," according to Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn.

He said the windows will stay open as a convenience to those who wish to mail last minute gifts.

"I would like to express my appreciation to those who mailed early. They have made this a very pleasant Christmas season," he commented.

The post office will be closed Monday, a legal holiday. Only special delivery parcels and letters will be delivered.

'Ridgecrest' May Be New Area Town

VIDALIA (Special) — Concordia Parish, now composed of a number of towns including Vidalia, Ferriday, Clayton, Monterey and several other smaller communities in the lower part, may soon have another separate town. It will be known, if incorporated, as Ridgecrest and is located between Vidalia and Ferriday.

President S. L. (Tom) Winston Jr., and members of the Concordia Parish Police Jury met Wednesday at Vidalia and heard a petition and resolution from citizens of Ridgecrest at the courthouse.

According to Winston the petition to incorporate Ridgecrest as a separate town in the parish was made after the jurors heard the petition and resolution. It was made after residents of the area had petitioned the police jury several weeks ago for the creation of water drainage and road districts.

Winston declared that the proposal was given careful study by police jurors and that several meetings had been held to inform residents of the area in regards to the costs.

If and when it is incorporated the community of Ridgecrest, Winston said, would receive the same benefits as if the districts were created at approximately one half the cost.

The flourishing community on U. S. Highway 84, near Ferriday was built seven years ago as a subdivision by Adcock-Booth Construction Company of Monroe.

Many houses and lots were sold and are still being sold in the large development. The subdivision has two acres of land and about 1500 residents.

The homes are well built, of brick, and it resembles a small town at the present time with stores and a shopping center at the head of the development.

At the present time, the residents of Ridgecrest get their mail from the Ferriday postoffice and receive some of the advantages of the citizens of Ferriday, but if and when it is incorporated, the residents of Ridgecrest will enjoy individual incorporation rights.

Columbia Man Dies Friday; Rites Pending

COLUMBIA (Special) — Edward Duchesne, 51-year-old Columbia resident, died of a heart attack Friday afternoon while chopping wood near his home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but will be under the direction of Riser and Sons Funeral Home of Columbia.

Mr. Duchesne is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alzie Duchesne, Columbia; one son, Travis Duchesne, Monroe; two daughters, Mrs. Davis Howard, Monroe, and Mrs. Laverne Howard, Baton Rouge; his mother, Mrs. Carey Duchesne, Monroe; three brothers, Earl Duchesne, Carthage, Tex., Allen Duchesne, Bossier City, and Ernie Duchesne, Monroe; eight sisters, Mrs. Alpha Walters and Mrs. Bertha Shipp, Hebert, Mrs. Bernice Breland, Monroe, Mrs. Cilla Faye Pratt, Harglan, Tex., Mrs. Mackie Fritch, Monroe, Mrs. Joyce Rayburn, Farmerville, Mrs. Sybil Evanoff, Lebanon, Tenn., and Mrs. Charles Thompson, South Pittsburgh, Pa.; and six grandchildren.

Kennedys Get Gifts By Ton

PALM BEACH (UPI) — Gifts "by the ton" rolled in Friday for the children of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Pres Secretary Pierre J. Salinger said they were pouring in from all over the country for both Kennedy's 3-year-old daughter Caroline and her infant brother, John F. Jr.

One of the gifts for John Jr. was a miniature football with his name engraved in gold. It came from UPI photographer Stanley Treick, who photographed the baby's christening.

The Kennedy villa was a beehive of activity. Gifts were being wrapped, and grocery and flower trucks raced in and out the estate.

But the final touches on preparations won't be complete until the arrival Saturday of Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, mother of the president-elect, who supervised the trimming of the gigantic tree in the living room of the Kennedy's Mediterranean style seaside stucco home.

Booth Suspects Face Lie Tests

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Public safety commissioner J. Earl Downs said Friday that two Negro men held in the brutal murder of Mrs. Mary Allen Booth would be taken to state police headquarters in Baton Rouge next week for lie detector tests.

The men, 19 and 43, had worked for Mrs. Booth, 57-year-old wife of a wealthy furniture merchant.

Mrs. Booth's body was found Sunday in a wooded area of near-by DeSoto Parish, six days after she had disappeared. Her blood-stained car was found in a shopping center parking lot on the evening she disappeared.

Air Force Gives Details About Discoverer XIX

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force tells a thing or two about its Discoverer XIX satellite, launched Tuesday to take the earth's temperature.

Its instruments are so sensitive they can detect the infrared reflection of sunlight on a dime at 1,000 yards, for example.

To work, the instruments must be kept at a constant temperature of 100 degrees below zero Centigrade.

Friday's announcement was a report on how Discoverer XIX is doing.

The Air Force said it is successfully radioing to ground stations information on the amount and character of the earth's infrared radiation. The data will be used in the upcoming Midas satellite series. Midas is designed to warn of hostile missile firings by detecting infrared radiation from missile engines.

The 25-foot, 2,100-pound moonlet's supply of gas to power its stabilization equipment was prematurely exhausted, the Air Force said, resulting in a slow movement of the satellite along its axis. It is supposed to move so its instrument-laden nose always points earthward.

This, however, has not interfered with the value or quality of data received, the Air Force said.

Garbage Truck Fleet Now Four

West Monroe's garbage truck fleet rose to four yesterday with the arrival of the last purchased enclosed bedtype garbage truck.

Street Supt. W. R. Townson said the truck, which was purchased at a special council meeting in October, will be put into service Tuesday on the south side of the city.

He added that garbage will now be picked up twice a week and two of the older trucks have been kept for use in picking up brush and trash.

Bogalusa Wreck Claims 2 Lives

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI) — Police today said a car bearing a Bogalusa man and a girl from Mississippi probably was out of control before it smashed into a bridge abutment and bounced into the path of a heavy truck near here Wednesday night, killing them both.

Dead are Mrs. Barbara Ann Wheat Morris, 18, of Crossroads, Miss., and Vernon Hopkins, 19, of Bogalusa, the car's driver. The driver of the truck, O. B. Johnson of Oklahoma City, was not hurt in the wreck.

Decorations Winners Get Prizes Today

Winners in West Monroe's Christmas home decorating contest will receive cash awards today.

Deadline for the competition was noon yesterday and a group of three judges selected the winners late last night. Cash awards of $25, $15 and $10 will be presented by Ray Gable, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Ceremonies will be held at Rorer Ervin's office on Trenton street at 10 a.m. today.

Judging was on four points — artistic merits of decorations, lighting techniques, originality and ingenuity. The judging panel included Mrs. Audrey Dawson, from the agriculture extension service; Carl E. Mittel from the Art Shop; and Mrs. Solon King, from the WMHS home economics department.

Eugene Thrasher, chairman of the contest committee which was sponsored by the Jaycees, said that a total of some 25 persons entered the annual competition.

Hunting Man Shot, Treated Then Walks Off

Takes more than a blast from a shotgun to stop Vance Trichel of Swartz.

Trichel was peppered with about 17-18 shots in the back of the head Friday while duck hunting on Wham Brake. He said he had just shot a duck and as he went out to get it, his friend, Oswald Trichel of Rt. 3, Monroe, cut down on a flight of ducks coming in.

He and Oswald got in the boat and came out of the swamp, then called an ambulance. After being treated at St. Francis Hospital, Vance pulled his cap down over his head and walked off.

Vance bagged three ducks, while Oswald got none.

Davis Target Of Dodd Blast

BATON ROUGE, (AP) — Former La. Gov. William Dodd Friday night accused Gov. Jimmie H. Davis of allowing "widespread and unethical conduct and practices on the part of his political henchmen."

"The spectacle of public scandal is rearing its ugly head in our state administration," Dodd charged in a statement.

The former state official asserted that Davis was "jeopardizing our chances of waging a successful fight against our state's enemies" by allowing his associates to engage in conflict-of-interest deals.

Davis was unavailable for comment.

Dodd's statement added: "Conflict-of-interest deals by chief aides and cronies of Gov. Davis as reported by the press radio and television will, if continued, undermine public confidence in his administration. This lack of public support will make it increasingly difficult for our legislature and the other sincere public officials to win the state's battles."

"Gov. Davis should dismiss immediately, as did President Eisenhower, every appointed official who has used his public office to organize banks, loan companies, insurance agencies and other profit-seeking enterprises which have gone into competition with legitimate businesses."

WOMEN'S GROUP

Monroe's B&PW Established Club

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles on service organizations and civic clubs in the Twin Cities. Today's article is about the Monroe Business and Professional Women's Club.

By JIM ROBERTSON
World Staff Writer

The Monroe Business and Professional Women's Club is one of the oldest service organizations in the area.

It was established in 1922 shortly after World War I when the need for coordinated woman power as well as man-power became evident. Secretary of War, Newton Baker had sent out an urgent call to make this woman power available for the war effort.

In subsequent investigation the War Department learned that the women of the nation were already organized in so far as religious, cultural and fraternal groups were concerned. The only group that wasn't organized were business and professional women.

Their response in the war effort was so prompt and efficient during the crisis that the potential power of a thoroughly mobilized business women's group was recognized immediately by the leaders of the nation.

SURVEY
This disclosure resulted in a quiet but rapid survey as to the status of business and professional women by the War Work Council, a group which had been formed to further the war effort of women.

It was discovered there were women in all states who were keenly aware of the need for a consolidation of the power of the business and professional woman. With the assistance of the War Work Council plans were made for an organizational meeting to be held in St. Louis, Mo., July, 1919. There were 400 women present at this convention. The group adopted a constitution and its objectives were named.

At present it is the largest organization in the world devoted to the interest of business and professional women.

Its objectives are: 1. To elevate the standards for women in business and in the professions. 2. To promote the interests of business and professional women. 3. To bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States. 4. To extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along the line of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

At the present time the Business and Professional Women's Clubs in the United States number over 130,000 members. The International Federation of B&PW Clubs is composed of 15 countries.

On the national level the organization devotes itself to the support of exchange students, a full-time representative at the United Nations and in Washington to interpret legislation pertaining to employed women.

The local club maintains a revolving fund to make loans to young women for educational purposes, at a low rate of interest; dresses dolls for the Salvation Army each Christmas and donates to a Chinese nursing fund.

It has been contributing to the nursing fund for the past 20 years. The project has assisted in the construction of hospitals and training of nurses. At present the project is now going on in Formosa.

Several years ago the Monroe B&PW Club built a $1500 Girl Scout Hut at Pinewood Camp near Sterlington.

The Monroe club has 72 members. They meet the second Tuesday of every month at the Frances Hotel at 6 p.m. and the fourth Tuesday of the month is devoted to a program meeting at the YWCA Building at 7:30 p.m.

From 1930 to 1940 the club owned the YWCA Building and operated a tea room and rented some of the rooms in the old mansion.

There are still three charter members who are active in the group. Miss Edith Gundy, Miss Mary O'Kelly and Mrs. Laura Slator were among the original group that organized the club in Monroe in 1921.

The club is supported by membership dues and fund raising activities such as fruit cake, Christmas cards and candy sales. Charter member Laura Slator said that in "the olden days we also had bingo games but that's all gone now."

Trio Injured Near Ruston In Collision

RUSTON (Special) — Three members of a Taylorville, Ill., family were injured Thursday night when they plowed into the rear of a parked, unlighted auto near Dubach.

The accident occurred just south of the D'Arbonne Bayou bridge on U. S. 167.

Injured were Mrs. Myrtle Swope, 52, her husband Clarence Swope, 56, and their 19-year old daughter Louise, all of Taylorville.

The parked auto, driven by Joseph L. Simmons, Benton, Ark., caught fire and burned both inside and out following the impact, state troopers reported.

The Lincoln Parish Sheriff's office got a telephone call from a passing motorist, almost simultaneously with the call telling of the crash, reporting a car parked without lights near the D'Arbonne bridge.

Simmons, who gave his address as both Monroe and Benton, Ark., was booked with a charge of driving while intoxicated and with simple obstruction of the highway.

Mrs. Swope sustained a bruised right leg and chest injuries. Louise Swope sustained cuts to the right side of her face, a bruised right leg and ankle injuries. The husband had a cut over and below his right eye, and chest injuries.

Dr. Marvin Green, who examined the three at Ruston Hospital, said he did not believe any was seriously injured.

Mrs. Swope's clothing ignited from the blaze, presumed started from a burst gasoline tank in the wreck. She was heavily clothed and apparently was not burned before she smothered the fire. Simmons claimed he was driving along the highway and that the Swope vehicle slammed into him.

The only member of the Swope family able to talk last night, Louise, said that the car was parked without lights. She said she did not see a driver in the car.

All the interior of the Simmons car as well as the exterior burned. A front tire on the Swope car burned. Officers at first believed that Simmons was burned inside the vehicle. However, he was sighted shortly after arrival of state police, walking along the road several hundred yards from the scene. It is not known whether he left the car after the accident or before the accident, state troopers said.

The Swope family was on their way to Sulphur for a Christmas visit with a son.

Girl Seriously Ill Gets Wish For Christmas

HARDY, Va. (UPI) — A little girl, seriously ill and hoping for lots of Christmas cards, got 10,000 of them Friday.

Dorothy Ridgeway, 9, a bright-eyed fourth grader, has a bone disease that may eventually prove fatal. Her father, John Henry Ridgeway, a woodcutter, said Dorothy's only Christmas wish was for mail.

The U.S. Weather Bureau heard about Dorothy and put her wish on its teleprinter wires.

The wish came true Friday, when the postman delivered three big bags, each bulging with about 3,000 letters, and another thousand loose letters and packages.

What Dorothy didn't know is that there's a lot more to come. The U.S. Army Transportation Command, a couple of airlines and a group of factory workers in England had yet to be heard from in this little Western Virginia mountain town.

Sgt. Joseph F. Witskin of the Transportation Command at Ft. Eustis, Va., decided to do something for Dorothy. He and other soldiers donated two large dolls, a dozen small ones, seven bushels of canned and packaged foods, five bushels of fruit and four sacks of potatoes for the Ridgeway family.

Witskin also arranged to have an Army plane fly the gifts to Roanoke Saturday where Army trucks will take them to Hardy.

Monroe Postal Personnel Will Continue Work

The stamp and parcel post windows at the Monroe post office will remain open this afternoon, "as long as the need justifies," according to Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn.

He said the windows will stay open as a convenience to those who wish to mail last minute gifts.

"I would like to express my appreciation to those who mailed early. They have made this a very pleasant Christmas season," he commented.

The post office will be closed Monday, a legal holiday. Only special delivery parcels and letters will be delivered.

'Ridgecrest' May Be New Area Town

VIDALIA (Special) — Concordia Parish, now composed of a number of towns including Vidalia, Ferriday, Clayton, Monterey and several other smaller communities in the lower part, may soon have another separate town.

It will be known, if incorporated, as Ridgecrest and is located between Vidalia and Ferriday.

President S. L. (Tam) Winston Jr., and members of the Concordia Parish Police Jury met Wednesday at Vidalia and heard a petition and resolution from citizens of Ridgecrest at the courthouse.

According to Winston the petition to incorporate Ridgecrest as a separate town in the parish was made after the jurors heard the petition and resolution. It was made after residents of the area had petitioned the police jury several weeks ago for the creation of water drainage and road districts.

Winston declared that the proposal was given careful study by police jurors and that several meetings had been held to inform residents of the area in regards to the costs.

If and when it is incorporated the community of Ridgecrest, Winston said, would receive the same benefits as if the districts were created at approximately one half the cost.

The flourishing community on U. S. Highway 84, near Ferriday was built seven years ago as a sub-division by Adeco-Booth Construction Company of Monroe. Many houses and lots were sold and are still being sold in the large development. The subdivision has two acres of land and about 1500 residents.

The homes are well built, of brick, and it resembles a small town at the present time with stores and a shopping center at the head of the development.

At the present time, the residents of Ridgecrest get their mail from the Ferriday postoffice and receive some of the advantages of the citizens of Ferriday, but if and when it is incorporated, the residents of Ridgecrest will enjoy individual incorporation rights.

Columbia Man Dies Friday; Rites Pending

COLUMBIA (Special) — Edward Duchesne, 51-year-old Columbia resident, died of a heart attack Friday afternoon while chopping wood near his home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but will be under the direction of Riser and Sons Funeral Home of Columbia.

Mr. Duchesne is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alzie Duchesne, Columbia; one son, Travis Duchesne, Monroe; two daughters, Mrs. Davis Howard, Monroe, and Mrs. Laverne Howard, Baton Rouge; his mother, Mrs. Carey Duchesne, Monroe; three brothers, Earl Duchesne, Carthage, Tex., Allen Duchesne, Bossier City, and Ernie Duchesne, Monroe; eight sisters, Mrs. Alpha Walters and Mrs. Bertha Shipp, Hebert, Mrs. Bernice Breland, Monroe, Mrs. Cilia Faye Pratt, Harglan, Tex., Mrs. Mackie Fritch, Monroe, Mrs. Joyce Rayburn, Farmerville, Mrs. Sybil Evanoff, Lebanon, Tenn., and Mrs. Charles Thompson, South Pittsburgh, Pa.; and six grandchildren.

Kennedys Get Gifts By Ton

PALM BEACH (UPI) — Gifts "by the ton" rolled in Friday for the children of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Pres. Secretary Pierre J. Salinger said they were pouring in from all over the country for both Kennedy's 3-year-old daughter Caroline and her infant brother, John F. Jr.

One of the gifts for John Jr. was a miniature football with his name engraved in gold. It came from UPI photographer Stanley Tretick, who photographed the baby's christening.

The Kennedy villa was a beehive of activity. Gifts were being wrapped, and grocery and flower trucks raced in and out the estate.

But the final touches on preparations won't be complete until the arrival Saturday of Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, mother of the president-elect, who supervised the trimming of the gigantic tree in the living room of the Kennedy's Mediterranean style seaside stucco home.

Booth Suspects Face Lie Tests

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Public safety commissioner J. Earl Downs said Friday that two Negro men held in the brutal murder of Mrs. Mary Allen Booth would be taken to state police headquarters in Baton Rouge next week for lie detector tests.

The men, 19 and 43, had worked for Mrs. Booth, 57-year-old wife of a wealthy furniture merchant.

Mrs. Booth's body was found Sunday in a wooded area of near-by DeSoto Parish, six days after she had disappeared. Her blood-stained car was found in a shopping center parking lot on the evening she disappeared.

Air Force Gives Details About Discoverer XIX

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force tells a thing or two about its Discoverer XIX satellite, launched Tuesday to take the earth's temperature.

Its instruments are so sensitive they can detect the infrared reflection of sunlight on a dime at 1,000 yards, for example.

To work, the instruments must be kept at a constant temperature of 100 degrees below zero Centigrade.

Friday's announcement was a report on how Discoverer XIX is doing.

The Air Force said it is successfully radioing to ground stations information on the amount and character of the earth's infrared radiation. The data will be used in the upcoming Midas satellite series. Midas is designed to warn of hostile missile firings by detecting infrared radiation from missile engines.

The 25-foot, 2,100-pound moonlet's supply of gas to power its stabilization equipment was prematurely exhausted, the Air Force said, resulting in a slow movement of the satellite about its axis. It is supposed to move so its instrument-laden nose always points earthward.

This, however, has not interfered with the value or quality of data received, the Air Force said.

Garbage Truck Fleet Now Four

West Monroe's garbage truck fleet rose to four yesterday with the arrival of the last purchased enclosed bodytype garbage truck.

Street Supt. W. R. Townson said the truck, which was purchased at a special council meeting in October, will be put into service Tuesday on the south side of the city.

He added that garbage will now be picked up twice a week and two of the older trucks have been kept for use in picking up brush and trash.

Bogalusa Wreck Claims 2 Lives

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI) — Police today said a car bearing a Bogalusa man and a girl from Mississippi probably was out of control before it smashed into a bridge abutment and bounced into the path of a heavy truck near here Wednesday night, killing them both.

Dead are Mrs. Barbara Ann Wheat Morris, 18, of Crossroads, Miss., and Vernon Hopkins, 19, of Bogalusa, the car's driver. The driver of the truck, O. B. Johnson of Oklahoma City, was not hurt in the wreck.

Decorations Winners Get Prizes Today

Winners in West Monroe's Christmas home decorating contest will receive cash awards today.

Deadline for the competition was noon yesterday and a group of three judges selected the winners late last night. Cash awards of $25, $15 and $10 will be presented by Ray Gable, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Ceremonies will be held at Rountree's office on Trenton street at 10 a.m. today.

Judging was on four points — artistic merits of decorations, lighting techniques, originality and ingenuity. The judging panel included Mrs. Audrey Dawson, from the agriculture extension service; Carl E. Mittel from the Art Shop; and Mrs. Solon King, from the WMHS home economics department.

Eugene Thrasher, chairman of the contest committee which was sponsored by the Jaycees, said that a total of some 25 persons entered the annual competition.

Hunting Man Shot, Treated Then Walks Off

Takes more than a blast from a shotgun to stop Vance Trichel of Swartz.

Trichel was peppered with about 17-18 shots in the back of the head Friday while duck hunting on Wham Brake. He said he had just shot a duck and as he went out to get it, his friend, Oswald Trichel of Rt. 3, Monroe, cut down on a flight of ducks coming in.

He and Oswald got in the boat and came out of the swamp, then called an ambulance. After being treated at St. Francis Hospital, Vance pulled his cap down over his head and walked off.

Vance bagged three ducks, while Oswald got none.

Davis Target Of Dodd Blast

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Former La. Gov. William Dodd Friday night accused Gov. Jimmie H. Davis of allowing "widespread and unethical conduct and practices on the part of his political henchmen."

"The spectacle of public scandal is rearing its ugly head in our state administration," Dodd charged in a statement.

The former state official asserted that Davis was "jeopardizing our chances of waging a successful fight against our state's enemies" by allowing his associates to engage in conflict-of-interest deals.

Davis was unavailable for comment.

Dodd's statement added: "Conflict-of-interest deals by chief aides and cronies of Gov. Davis as reported by the press radio and television will, if continued, undermine public confidence in his administration. This lack of public support will make it increasingly difficult for our legislature and the other sincere public officials to win the state's battles."

"Gov. Davis should dismiss immediately, as did President Eisenhower, every appointed official who has used his public office to organize banks, loan companies, insurance agencies and other profit-seeking enterprises which have gone into competition with legitimate businesses."

FETTINGER GETS 27

Neville Outlasts Bastrop By 48-46

By JERRY HARKNESS
Staff Sports Writer

For awhile it looked like Mike Fettinger would be all the Neville Tigers would be able to muster against Bastrop last night but Truett Nolan and Frank Keith began to chip in late in the game and the Tigers managed a 48-46 win over the AAA Rams at the Neville gym.

Fettinger hit 6 field goals and a free throw for 13 of Neville's 21 points in the first two quarters but Bastrop's near-perfect timing on the screen and roll kept the Tigers in the hole throughout the first half.

Left-handed shooting Fettinger racked up 27 points to grab game scoring honors, while the nearest Tigers were Nolan, with 9 points, and Keith, with 7. George Madson got 16 points for Bastrop. Neville started off slow and, as usual, finished fast. Bastrop's Eugene Bates drove in for a layup to start off the scoring in the first quarter and Jeff Seligman added a free throw for the Rams before Fettinger hit a jump from the side and closed the gap to 3-2. Bastrop managed a 9-7 first quarter lead, and moved out to an 18-14 advantage with 4:30 left in the half.

Fettinger kept waging his war against the Rams and notched the score at 20-20 with 2:30 left in the half, but Madison and Files played it cool and got a layup each. Bastrop gave up only a free throw to the Tigers' Dutch Cerniglia in the last seconds of the half and sat out intermission with a 24-21 lead.

Neville's Fettinger started off the third quarter like he was going to monopolize the Tiger scoring again getting two quick baskets, and tied the score at 25-25. Keith began to hit from almost half court and the Tigs jumped out ahead, 34-26, midway in the third period.

The Rams got hot for a spurt in the fourth quarter, enough to pull to within 42-40 on George Madison's jumper with 3:15 left in the game and to knot the score at 44-44 with two minutes left, this time on Madison's layup.

Fettinger proved to be the ultimate weapon for Neville and sank two free throws to push the Tigers into a 48-46 lead that held up for the win.

New Division For Smaller Cagers Asked

TOKYO (AP) — Nat Holman, America's basketball ambassador to the Orient, Friday urged two medals for Olympic basketball—one for the small men and another for men over 6 feet tall.

Holman, who is winding up a week of clinics for Japanese high school and college coaches, said a small men's division would boost the game in the Far East and eliminate the embarrassment of countries unable to produce tall players.

The former City College of New York coach urged the International Olympic Committee set up two divisions—for players under and over 6 feet.

"Small men as a unit can't possibly compete against the big men," said Holman. "Lack of strength as well as height rules out the little guy."

The United States has won the gold medal in every Olympic Games since the sport became part of the official program in 1936.

Holman's tour, which will take him to Formosa, following clinics in Japan and Korea, is his second in the Orient under the sponsorship of the U.S. State Department. He was in Japan four years ago.

Holman conducted his Tokyo lectures in the cold damp Nihon University Gymnasium, using the Nihon University team for the demonstrations.

"Fire that ball," he told the players through his interpreter. "Tell that man I want him to drive into the basket. Tell them some teams practice hard on this play. Tell the redshirts to overplay on the press."

Using movies of professional and college games in the U.S., Holman tried to impress on the coaches the need for more improvising and the devising of plays on both offense and defense. Because the game is comparatively new here, the tendency is to play a conservative brand of ball.

After demonstrating the double screens, double pivots and fast breaks that are common to U.S. ball, Holman was delayed 15 minutes in leaving while the Nihon team presented a banner reading: "Nat Holman, Dec. 1960 Nihon B.B.T."

New Format To Be Tried In Tourneys

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A new format will be tried by the Professional Golfers' Association for the early winter tournaments of 1961 with competitors starting at both the first and tenth tees.

"We can accommodate more players that way," explained Tournament Director Harvey Raynor Friday.

Half the field on the first day will start at the first tee and the other half at the tenth. The next day the proceedings will be reversed.

"With only so much daylight available," Raynor said, "this will give an opportunity for more to compete and in a lesser time."

He said the PGA tried the system when rain delayed the start of play at Tacoma last year.

He explained that under the new system, there could be as many as 150 starters where previously 130 was the maximum.

Since the normal procedure is to reduce the field to the leaders after the first 36 holes of a 72-hole tournament, the third day will find all the surviving golfers starting from the first tee.

"We will use the system for the tournaments up to the Masters," Raynor said.

Ex-Penn State Coach Stricken

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP)—Bob Higgins, former head football coach at Penn State, is in hospital following a stroke.

His doctor said Friday Higgins is "doing unusually well. But it will be about two weeks before we can assess the damage." Higgins, who will be 67 Saturday, was stricken at his home Wednesday.

Bradley Routs Cincinnati In 72-53 Contest

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Bradley's undefeated Braves, ranked second nationally, smashed Cincinnati 72-53 Friday night in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game.

The victory was the eighth straight this season for Bradley, which now has a string of 14 successive triumphs and a record of 42 straight at home dating back to Jan. 20, 1946, when the Braves were upset by Portland.

The two teams, perennial powers in their conference, battled back and forth until Bradley went ahead to stay 14-13 on a basket by Tim Robinson.

Cincinnati employed a 2-3 zone in the first half, which found Bradley in front 33-29. The Bearcats then switched to a man-to-man, but it was to no avail as the Braves went going away in their conference opener.

The loss gave Cincinnati a 0-2 conference mark and a 5-3 record for the season.

Robinson topped Bradley with 20 points and Lee Edwards added 16.

Bradley's top scorer for the season—Chet Walker—was employed as an outside shooter, and he finished with 13 points after averaging 28.7 in the Braves' first seven games.

Paul Hogue and Tom Yates shared scoring honors for Cincinnati with 16 points each. Hogue also was the game's leading rebounder with 12.

Bradley shot .510 from the field, Cincinnati .340.

Washington Reserve Back Hospitalized

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Reserve fullback Joe Jones, tabbed the most devastating defensive player on the Washington football squad, went to the hospital Friday with a kidney disorder.

The 195-pound senior from Vallejo, Calif., was the first casualty since the Huskies began drilling for their Rose Bowl date with Minnesota Jan. 2.

At first, Coach Jim Owens thought Jones merely had a bad stomach ache but deeper examination disclosed the more serious trouble.

The Huskies won't know for a day or so whether Jones will be out of action for days—or even the big game itself. Jones, 22, gave regular fullback Ray Jackson a rough battle all season for the starting job.

Jones, in fact, opened up in two regular season games.

There was another "first" for Washington Friday. Owens put the Huskies into contact scrimmage for an hour and one half under a hot sun in 80-degree weather.

"I am not disappointed," said Owens later, which amounts to mild praise for taciturn Jim.

Pinchback Leads Xavier To Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Pinchback found his shooting eye in the second half Friday night and led Xavier of Ohio to an 87-82 basketball defeat of Gonzaga.

Despite a 36-point performance by Frank Burgess, national scoring leader for Gonzaga, the West Coast team lost its fifth in a row.

Pinchback made most of his 24 points in the second half when, with help of Jim Enright, the Musketeers drove to a commanding lead.

After the early minutes of the second period, Gonzaga got no closer than two points back, 72-70.

Climaxing a see-saw first half, Burgess, Don Hansen and Art Taylor hit three quick baskets to give the losers a 41-40 halftime edge.

Navy Gridders Get Commands

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Three members of Navy's starting football backfield and two linemen have been named to ranking officer posts in the 3,800-man Brigade of Midshipmen for the Naval Academy's winter period.

All America end Mike Ditka, nicknamed "The Hammer," hoisted chubby Dave more than 6 feet aloft with big hands that made brilliant catches of passes for the University of Pittsburgh.

MIAMI (AP)—Dale Hall of Army, co-coach of the North all-star football team with Michigan's Bump Elliott, said Friday he has a better over-all team than that which he coached to victory last year over the South in the Shrine game.

"But if we're going to win it will be on our passing and not our running attack," Hall added in commenting on the chances of North in its game in the Orange Bowl Monday night.

However, the North has impressed with both its running and passing attacks in its drills this week. Friday the squad was dressed in full regalia for the first time, and went through its complete assortment of plays.

South coaches Bear Bryant of Alabama and Darrell Royal of Texas, possibly anticipating a close encounter, spent the early part of their drill working with the punters and place kickers.

Lauren Stapp of Alabama is expected to bear the brunt of the punting duties, with Gerald Burch of Georgia Tech also available. Russ Morris of Vanderbilt will butt the extra points and Vincent Scott of Maryland will take care of any possible field goal attempts.

The South squad elected Monte Lee of Texas and Bill Shaw of Georgia Tech as co-captains.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Boxing and wrestling shows promoted by Los Angeles' Olympic Auditorium grossed $956,243.57 in 1960, co-promoters Cal Eaton and George Parnassus said Friday.

In 77 boxing cards, the gross was $794,404.35, while 53 wrestling cards drew $161,839.22.

Largest gate was $383,060 for the double title fight in Memorial Coliseum Feb. 4. It featured Jose Becerra and Alphonse Halimi for the bantamweight title and Carlos Ortiz and Raymundo Torres for the junior welterweight crown.

Under the league constitution a new club can be voted in by a majority of the league directors.

"If I get a request for a franchise," Totten said, "Then I will poll the directors." He said this can be done by telephone, if necessary, with the formality of approving a new member being taken up at the next directors' meeting.

With the departure of Memphis, the Southern Association has seven directors. They are: Leon Hamilton, Atlanta; Joe Engel, Chattanooga; Dr. Cleo Miller, Nashville; James McPhillips, Mobile; Ray Winder, Little Rock; Bonneau Peters, Shreveport and Eddie Glennon, Birmingham.

HEART-CLUTCHING SCENE

Footballers Meet Crippled Children

By HAROLD V. STREETER
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave is a 2-year-old butterball of a boy. First sight of the blond cutie makes you instinctively want to grab him up and squeeze him.

Caron is a pensive girl of 4, a bit too thin, and with the biggest, prettiest brown eyes you ever saw.

Friday Dave and Caron met 'trotting' horrors of the college gridiron. Quicker than you can kick a football, these children melted them down into utter tenderness.

The heart-clutching scene was the wards for crippled children in Shriners' Hospital. There 48 college football stars who will play for the East and West Dec. 31 saw first-hand the meaning of the game's motto: Strong legs run that weak legs may walk.

Charger Boss To Visit San Diego Soon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Barron Hilton of the Los Angeles Chargers Friday said he will visit San Diego soon to investigate an invitation to move his American Football League franchise there.

Hilton's disclosure followed receipt of a telegram from Dr. Albert Anderson, chairman of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce Major League Sports Committee.

It urged Hilton to visit San Diego and confer with city and civic leaders to "discuss possibilities of the Chargers operating in San Diego in 1961."

"This invitation," said Hilton, "is among several I have received to visit cities which have expressed interest in moving the Chargers."

"Although it is still my desire to continue to operate in Los Angeles, I would be remiss as president of our club if I did not investigate the enthusiasm expressed in Dr. Anderson's telegram."

"I plan to visit San Diego in the near future and meet with officials for the purpose of determining the nature of their proposal."

The young major stockholder of the club plans to fly to Houston where the Chargers play the Oilers in the playoff championship of the AFL Jan. 1.

All Favorites Move Through Third Round

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—All eight seeded players stormed through the third round of the Orange Bowl Junior Tennis Championships Friday and only two—Rodney Brent of Newcastle, Australia, and Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla.—were threatened with a loss of a set.

Walter Johnson of Hollywood, Fla., pushed the eight-seeded Brent to 9-7 in their first set but was unable to maintain the torrid pace and wilted to lose the second set 6-3.

Froehling, No. 6, found Eric Drossart of Brussels, Belgium, a formidable opponent but won at 6-3, 7-5 after being temporarily down in the second set.

Top-seeded Juan Gisbert of Barcelona, Spain, was pushed to 6-4, 6-3 by Iarte Adam of Porto Alegre, Brazil, but Gisbert appeared in command all the way with his crisp ground drives and volleys.

Christian Duxin of Paris, No. 2, dropped Howard Letzing of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-2, 6-3.

The U.S. junior champion, third-seeded Bill Lenoir of Tucson, Ariz., had no difficulty with Manuel Monroy of Mexico City, 6-0, 6-2.

John Newcombe of Longueville, Australia, No. 4, was impressive in a 6-1, 6-1 win over Mexico's Alfredo Alvarez.

The Wimbledon junior titleholder, fifth-seeded Rodney Mandelstam of Johannesburg, South Africa, ousted Thorik Larsen of Copenhagen, Denmark, and Daniel Content of Paris, No. 7, defeated Gerardo Wortelboer of Buenos Aires, Argentina, 6-3, 6-4.

Stanley is the quarterback and led the Southwest Conference in passing with 75 completions for 1,151 yards and five touchdowns. He also scored two touchdowns himself.

Halfback Ronnie Goodwin led the conference in scoring with 54 points, topped in kickoff returns with 167 yards and had the highest average in punt returns with 24 yards per run. He was second in the conference in rushing with 454 yards and he was third in pass receiving with 19 catches.

To Remain As Athletic Chief

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Wally Butts, the pass master, stepped down Friday after 22 years as head football coach at the University of Georgia.

He will continue as the university's athletic director, a post he has held in conjunction with his coaching duties.

Speculation on Butts' successor began immediately. Among those prominently mentioned were two members of his present staff—freshman coach Johnny Griffith and backfield coach Charlie Trippi, one of Georgia's greatest players under Butts.

Butts submitted his resignation to Dr. O. C. Aderhold, president of the university. A member of the university athletic board said screening of applicants for the coaching post would begin soon.

Butts was en route by automobile from Athens to Montgomery, Ala., to help coach the South team for the annual Blue-Gray game in Montgomery on Dec. 31.

In eight previous appearances as a coach of post-season all-star classics, Butts has been on the winning side seven times and a loser once. The only loss was to the professional Chicago Cardinal led by his pupil Trippi, in 1948.

Three other times Butts-coached all-stars upset the reigning champions.

Butts' record as head coach at Georgia including bowl games, stands at 140 victories, 86 defeats and nine ties. He won Southeastern Conference championships in 1942, 1946, 1947 and 1959, and took Georgia teams to the Orange Bowl in 1942, 1949 and 1959, the Rose Bowl in 1943, to the Oil Bowl in 1946, the Sugar Bowl in 1947, the Gator Bowl in 1948 and the Presidential Cup Bowl in 1950.

The 1959 season perhaps represented one of the peaks in Butts' coaching career. He won his fourth SEC championship — and the first for Georgia in 12 seasons — was voted conference coach of the

Old Packers Say '60 Team To Win

By PAUL CLIFFORD
GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—The Green Bay Packers head East Saturday in quest of the National Football League title, favored—at least by some members of the old title-winning Packer team—to win by as much as two touchdowns.

The Western Conference champion Packers meet the Philadelphia Eagles, the Eastern Conference champs, in Philadelphia's Franklin Field.

The Packers will leave here by chartered plane at 11 a.m. EST for a brief morning workout. They will hold their final drill in Philadelphia on Christmas Day. Despite continued near-zero weather, Coach Vince Lombardi sent his squad through another practice session this morning. Both offense and defense were stressed as the players worked in their shoes because the field was frozen hard.

Lombardi would say only that everybody will be able to play as the Packers seek their first crown since 1944.

Pete Tinsley, a guard on the 1944 Packer team, said, "I've seen some of the players in practice this week, and they are ready. They really want this one. If the field is dry it will be a high-scoring game and the Packers will win by two touchdowns."

He said that if the field is bad the game will be decided on field goals "and the Packers will win because they can move the ball." Curly Lambeau, who coached the Packers to all six of their earlier titles, called the condition of the field the big factor. "Any off tack will favor the Packers," he said. "And besides, the Packers are tougher, and I don't think the Eagles can stop their running attack."

Former Packer star end Don Hutson, who held the NFL single-season scoring record until it was broken this year by Paul Hornung, said, "I think the Packers have built up a momentum the Eagles do not have. The Packers had to play their season to the end to win while the Eagles clinched their title early. Once you lose that head of steam, it's hard to build it up again."

Ted Fritsch, fullback who scored both Packer touchdowns in the 14-7 victory over the New York Giants in the 1944 game, said, "Our team is better balanced. The Packers have a better club, and I don't think they'll have much trouble."

The captain of the 1944 team, Charlie Brock, was another who said the field will make the difference. "Rain or mud will favor the Packers."

Halfback Tony Canadeo found another reason to support the Packers. "If the Eagles have a weakness, our coaching staff will find it and work on it."

War Of Nerves Ignited Over Sirola Serve

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—A war of nerves broke out two days before the Davis Cup challenge round Friday with a controversy over Orlando Sirola's serving motion.

Two foot-fault judges who watched a practice said the giant Italian frequently committed a foot-fault and would be penalized if he served in that manner in the matches against the Australians starting Monday.

Vanni Canepile, Italian captain, said he felt Harry Hopman, Australian captain, was behind the move.

"Sirola serves the same way he has served for eight years in the principal cities of the world," Canepile said. "We plan no formal protest at this point. We expect fair treatment. But we will ask for five different foot fault judges—one for every match."

Davis Cup officials said Canepile's request for five separate judges would be honored.

Two of three judges who watched the Davis Cup teams of both Italy and Australia practice serving said Sirola took a short step behind the line before striking the ball. They said this was a rules violation.

Sirola, who has one of the best serves in amateur tennis, stands well behind the line and does not endanger the rule forbidding stepping on the line.

"They have not said a word to me," Sirola said. "They merely asked me did I foot fault and I said no. I am not worried. I will stand a meter behind the line if necessary and will plant both my feet together. But my serve is legal—I do nothing different than Leo Hadad, for instance, did."

Canepile was bitter over the incident but insisted he would never protest, regardless of how many foot faults are called against his man.

"It would be dangerous to foot-fault Sirola," the Italian captain said. "He has not been called at Wimbledon, Paris or Perth. It is ridiculous to assume that he is foot-faulting at this late date."

Asked what he thought might have provoked the foot-fault episode so near the match, Canepile said:

"Hopman, of course."

Lebron Bell, Miss. College Top Scorers

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiny Bryan College of Dayton, Tenn.—enrollment 250—boasts the top point-maker in small college basketball.

First weekly statistics Friday from the NCAA Service Bureau show Lebron Bell of Bryan the national little school leader with a 35.4 average after eight games. Bell has an eye-lash lead over Doane's Carl Velloff, who averaged better than 36 points a game last season but didn't qualify for the scoring title because he played only 11 games.

In six games this season, Velloff has a 35.3 average. None of the other leaders is averaging 30 points a game, although three are just a shade below—Warren Spraggins of Virginia Union with 29.8, Leo Anthony of the Norfolk Branch of William & Mary 29.6, and Jim Reedy of Bridgewater (Va.) 29.3.

Other early season individual leaders are Gary Menefey of Carthage in free three accuracy with .868 per cent, Jim Knapp of Hartwick in field goal percentage with .757, and Herb Gary of North Carolina A&T in rebounds a game with 23.4.

Mississippi College, last year's scoring champ with a record 114.2 average, leads again with 111.5 while Amherst is the defense leader, holding opponents to a 40-point output so far.

FROM LAST TO FIRST

Eagles' Rise Credited To QB, Coach, Not Mirrors

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—How do you take a team from last place in 1958 to first in 1960—with mirrors?

"No, with a quarterback and a coach," says Vince McNally whose Philadelphia Eagles meet the Green Bay Packers here Monday for the National Football League title.

McNally, Eagles' general manager, said he decided after the 1957 season the Eagles had to clean house, coaches and players alike.

"I made three trips to California to try to sign Buck Shaw as head coach," he said. "Finally, Shaw signed."

"I wasn't home from the Coast in 1958 when my telephone rang. It was Buck. 'Oh, here I signed up and I don't even have a quarterback,' he said. 'How do you expect me to win in this league without a quarterback?'"

McNally said he told Shaw not to worry, he'd have a quarterback.

"Frankly, I didn't know where I was going to get one. Bobby Thomson had retired, which left us high and dry. Then I heard scuttlebutt through the grapevine that the (Los Angeles) Rams were thinking of trading (Norm) Van Brocklin."

"I made six or seven telephone calls and finally went to see (Pete) Rozelle (then general manager of the Rams). I beat Pittsburgh to the deal only because I had a first draft choice to trade and the Steelers didn't."

McNally also gave the Rams two players for Van Brocklin. He called Shaw in California and told him, "You have a quarterback. 'Who?' he asked me. Van Brocklin. 'Wonderful, now we're in business,' he said."

Shaw came East, took a look at the Eagles roster and made up three lists, one a nucleus he wanted to keep, the second a group he wanted improved and the third a number of players to get rid of.

The Eagles finished last in 1958 with a 2-9-1 record, but the rebuilding job was begun. In the next two seasons, McNally bought from or traded with every club in the league but Cleveland and Pittsburgh and made several key draft choices.

End Pete Retzlaff was a $100 steal from Detroit, tackle Jim McCusker and Chuck Weber came from the Cardinals, Gerry Huth was obtained from New York, former Bear Joe Robb, and ex-skin Ed Khayat signed as free agents, Marion Campbell arrived from the 49ers, Bobby Freeman from Green Bay, Don Burroughs from the Rams, Jim Carr via Baltimore and Tim Brown from Green Bay.

These were combined with such Eagles standbys as Chuck Bednarik, Bobby Winstone, Jess Richardson, Tom Brookshier, Bill Barnes, Clarence Peaks and Tommy McDonald, and Ted Dean, Max Baughan, and John Wilcox, drafted last winter.

Presto, from last to first.

NO NEGROES

Redskins' Racial Policy Draws Fire

By GORDON COBBLEDICK
Plain Dealer Sports Editor

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mike Nixon, a very nice man, has been fired as coach of the Washington Redskins and Bill McPeak, who is equally nice and perhaps even more personable, has been engaged in his place.

But McPeak must know that substantial improvement in the Redskins' fortunes is impossible under the club's present policy. There has been no admission in Washington that a definite policy exists, but the evidence is convincing. The Redskins are spotting their rivals the tremendous advantage of exclusive rights to a whole race of excellent football players.

Washington has no Negro players and it can't be believed that the fact is mere happenstance. Other teams, lower in the draft list than the Redskins, have found many brilliant colored stars annually among the graduating collegians. That the "Skins haven't found them can mean only that they haven't been looking.

Consider where the Cleveland Browns would be without Jim Brown and Bobby Mitchell, or the Baltimore Colts without Lenny Moore and Big Daddy Lipscomb. What would you think of the New York Giants' chances if they didn't have Roosevelt Grier and Roosevelt Brown at the tackles and Mel Triplett at fullback?

Negro stars have contributed football's current history—Joe Perry, Ollie Matson, Willie Grier, R. C. Owens, Clarence Peaks, J. C. Caroline and more than a score of others. In many cases they have spelled the difference between winning and losing seasons, winning and losing seasons.

This isn't an argument for social equality. It's a matter of practical football policy. When any club deliberately denies itself access to such a rich source of talent it cannot hope to compete, in any ordinary circumstances, with rivals who have happily and profitably broken what used to be known as the color line.

Conceivably an all-white pro football team could be assembled that would win, but the smart money wouldn't be on it.

From their beginnings in 1946 the football Browns have been consistently good and sometimes great, largely because they have had a chain of Negro stars from Marion Motley and Bill Willis to Brown and Mitchell.

Fans have been heard to grumble about it, but the fact is that baseball's attendance records all were set after Negroes had ceased to be a novelty in big league lineups, and pro football attendance goes up every year.

But it won't go up in Washington until the barriers are lowered.

JOINS BOARD OF COACHES'

Collins Thinks Cub Owner May Have The Last Laugh

CHICAGO (AP)—A one-time member of the St. Louis Cardinals' old "Gashouse Gang," James (Rip) Collins, Friday joined the Chicago Cubs' intriguing "board of coaches" and thinks Cub owner P. K. Wrigley may have the last laugh after all.

Collins was hired as the fourth man on a projected eight-coach staff which Wrigley expects to help select a new field manager in what is a complete twist in baseball tradition.

The seventh-place Cubs have been without a manager since Oct. 4 when Lou Boudreau quit after being refused a two-year pact.

Collins joins Harry Craft, Elvin Tappe and Vedic Himsel on Wrigley's coaching board. When completed, the coaching staff, besides recommending a manager, will work interchangeable with the Cubs and their farm clubs.

powerful Cardinals of the early 1930s.

"When I first heard about Wrigley's new plan," said Collins, "I wondered what the dickens was going on. But after a long chat with Mr. Wrigley, I am convinced there is a lot of good, sound basic sense to it."

"It will take time, of course, to work out the program, but I'm sure it will work. I'm happy to be back in baseball."

Another possible member of the Cub coaching board may be former Cub star Billy Jurgens. At least, Wrigley said he wrote Jurgens explaining his plan.

Under Wrigley's plan, the eventual head man may not have the title of manager. He may be known as head coach, managing director or chairman of the board, as far as the chewing gum magnate is concerned.

Commissioner Ford Frick, queried on the proposed Cub plan, said there is nothing in baseball law which requires a team to have a manager, designated as such.

"Mr. Wrigley can have a head coach if he wants," said Frick. "Anyways, this is strictly his business. The rules require only that nine men be on the field."

As for the idea of eight coaches and no manager, Frick observed: "Well, it's a new idea. Anyway, Mr. Wrigley is a very sincere baseball man and if it works out, then more power to him."

DEFENDING CHAMPS

NATCHITOCHES, La. (Special)

Northwestern State College's Demons went into the Christmas holiday break with a 6-2 record after three victories on successive nights this week. The Demons will next be in action when they defend their Gulf South Classic tournament title in the big Shreveport extravaganza, December 28 through 30.

Northwestern won the title of the holiday event last year with victories over Hardin Simmons, George Washington University, and Eastern Kentucky. The Ole Miss Rebels have been picked as favorites for the upcoming meet over a fine field including the Demons, South Carolina, Middle Tennessee, Texas Western, Georgetown, Louisiana Tech and Centenary.

After a slow start during which NSC was able to win only one of three games, the Demons have come back to capture five straight. Included in the skein was a reverse victory over Stephen F. Austin, victor in a contest earlier this year.

Also included in the streak was a triumph over Southwest Texas State's Bobcats, the defending national champions of the NAIA tourney in Kansas City. Northwestern whipped the Bobcats, 70-55, to break that team's 13 game winning streak.

The other setback for the Demons was to Mississippi Southern, and Coach Huey Cranford's squad will have a chance to avenge that loss when the two teams clash in Hattiesburg, Miss., late in the season.

ter Truitt Weldon with 11.0.

All - GSC guard Gene Wright, a 6-0 junior from Negreet, has begun to hit his stride after suffering during the early part of the season with a knee ailment. Wright is averaging just below the double - mark with a 9.5 average. The Demons ran into some tough luck Wednesday night during their second straight victory over Southeast Oklahoma, Phillip Halley, 6-3 senior forward from Belmont, crashed to the floor going in for a layup and was knocked unconscious.

Haley was taken to the Natchitoches Parish hospital where he is recuperating. The extent of his injury will make playing time in the Gulf South Classic limited.

In the rebound department, Hatch and Weldon are leading. Hatch has picked off 98 in eight games for an average of 12.2. Weldon has a 9.4 pickoff average for seven games.

Municipal To Be Closed Sunday

Club Pro Hugh Britt said yesterday the Municipal Golf Course and clubhouse would be closed this Sunday, Christmas Day, but would be open all day Monday, Dec. 26.

The Municipal course is usually closed every Monday but Britt said it would be open this Monday because of the Sunday closing.

Odell Considered Top Candidate

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Bob Odell, Bucknell University's football coach, is considered the No. 1 candidate for Cornell's vacant head coach job, the Philadelphia Bulletin said Friday.

Odell was interviewed by Cornell officials Friday, the Bulletin said in a story from Ithaca, N.Y. Lefty James was fired as Cornell coach after last season.

One of the University of Pennsylvania's all-time backfield greats, Odell was named head coach at Bucknell in 1958, after several years at Wisconsin and Yale as an assistant. Bucknell this fall lost only to Cornell and Rutgers, and won the Lambert Cup, which goes annually to the outstanding small college team in the East.

NFL Players' Attorney May Be Discharged

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Attorney Creighton Miller may be dropped as attorney for the National Football League Players Association, it was learned Friday.

A reliable source told The Associated Press sentiment in favor of firing Miller was building up among the some 500 players in the league.

The chief beef against Miller, the source said, is his alleged failure to be accepted by the club owners.

One element in the association feels that Miller antagonizes the owners with threats of law suits and thereby retards player-owner relations.

He constantly threatens the owners with law suits, which only serves to stiffen their backs against our demands, the source said.

Also, it is reported a sizeable group feels the $11,000-a-year and unlimited expense account paid the attorney is draining the association's treasury. Some feel the source says, an attorney should not be retained on a permanent basis, but on a case fee.

The source said also it was felt in some quarters of the association the group would be better served by players negotiating with the owners. He pointed out Eddie LeBaron of the Dallas team, an attorney, as one capable of carrying out this function.

A player or players, said the source, has a much better understanding of both player problems and those of the owners. He could deal with them on a more familiar platform than an outsider, he said.

The source admitted Miller, who founded the association and negotiated for many benefits with owners and the commissioner's office in recent years, had done the players a lot of good. He added that it was felt by some, however, the players now are in a position to do a better job for themselves.

The subject of Miller and his status as counsel for the association is to come up next month when the players meet in Miami, site of a game between the Detroit Lions and Cleveland Browns, second-place teams in each division. It is hoped this "runner-up" bowl will be an annual affair with most of the receipts going into the player pension fund.

Among the things Miller obtained for the players in negotiations are recognition for the association, exhibition game pay, health and accident insurance, a pension plan, standardized meal money on the road, and a minimum salary. His two listed tactics were credited with bringing reluctant owners into line with association thinking.

Old Packers Say '60 Team To Win

By PAUL CLIFFORD
GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—The Green Bay Packers head East Saturday in quest of the National Football League title, favored—at least by some members of the old title-winning Packer team—to win by as much as two touchdowns.

The Western Conference champions Packers meet the Philadelphia Eagles, the Eastern Conference champs, in Philadelphia's Franklin Field.

The Packers will leave here by chartered plane at 11 a.m., EST after a brief morning workout. They will hold their final drill in Philadelphia on Christmas Day.

Despite continued near-zero weather, Coach Vince Lombardi sent his squad through another practice session this morning. Both offense and defense were stressed as the players worked in gnis shoes because the field was frozen hard.

Lombardi would say only that everybody will be able to play as the Packers seek their first crown since 1944.

Pete Tinsley, a guard on the 1944 Packer team, said, "I've seen some of the players in practice this week, and they are ready. They really want this one. If the field is dry it will be a high-scoring game and the Packers will win by two touchdowns."

He said that if the field is bad he game will be decided on field goals "and the Packers will win because they can move the ball."

Curly Lambeau, who coached the Packers to all six of their earlier titles, called the condition of the field the big factor. "Any off tack" will favor the Packers," he said. "And besides, the Packers are tougher, and I don't think the Eagles can stop their running attack."

Former Packer star end Don Hutson, who held the NFL single-season scoring record until it was broken this year by Paul Hornung said, "I think the Packers have built up a momentum the Eagles do not have. The Packers had to play their season to the end to win while the Eagles clinched their title early. Once you lose that head of steam, it's hard to build it up again."

Ted Fritsch, fullback who scored both Packer touchdowns in the 14-7 victory over the New York Giants in the 1944 game, said, "Our team is better balanced. The Packers have a better club, and I don't think they'll have much trouble."

The captain of the 1944 team, Charlie Brock, was another who

Halfback Tony Canadeo found another reason to support the Packers. "If the Eagles have a weakness, our coaching staff will find it and work on it."

War Of Nerves Ignited Over Sirola Serve

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—A war of nerves broke out two days before the Davis Cup challenge round Friday with a controversy over Orlando Sirola's serving motion.

Two foot-fault judges who watched a practice said the giant Italian frequently committed a foot-fault and would be penalized if he served in that manner in the matches against the Australians starting Monday.

Vanni Canepile, Italian captain, said he felt Harry Hopman, Australian captain, was behind the move.

"Sirola serves the same way he has served for eight years in the principal cities of the world," Canepile said. "We plan no formal protest at this point. We expect fair treatment. But we will ask for five different foot fault judges—one for every match."

Davis Cup officials said Canepile's request for five separate judges would be honored.

Two of three judges who watched the Davis Cup teams of both Italy and Australia practice serving said Sirola took a short step behind the line before striking the ball. They said this was a rules violation.

Sirola, who has one of the best services in amateur tennis, stands well behind the line and does not endanger the rule forbidding stepping on the line.

"They have not said a word to me," Sirola said. "They merely asked me did I foot fault and I said no. I am not worried. I will stand a meter behind the line if necessary and will plant both my feet together. But my serve is legal—I do nothing different than Lew Hoad, for instance, did."

Canapele was bitter over the incident but insisted he would never protest, regardless of how many foot faults are called against his man.

Asked what he thought might have provoked the foot-fault episode so near the match, Canepile said:

"Hopman, of course."

Lebron Bell, Miss. College Top Scorers

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiny Bryan College of Dayton, Tenn.—enrollment 250—boasts the top pointmaker in small college basketball.

First weekly statistics Friday from the NCAA Service Bureau show Lebron Bell of Bryan the national little school leader with a 35.4 average after eight games. Bell has an eye-lash lead over Doane's Carl Velloff, who averaged better than 36 points a game last season but didn't qualify for the scoring title because he played only 11 games.

In six games this season, Velloff has a 35.3 average.

None of the other leaders is averaging 30 points a game, although three are just a shade below—Warren Spraggins of Virginia Union with 29.8, Leo Anthony of the Norfolk Branch of William & Mary 29.6, and Jim Reedy of Bridgewater (Va.) 29.3.

Other early season individual leaders are Gary Meneley of Carthage in free three accuracy with .863 per cent, Jim Knapp of Hartwich in field goal percentage with .757, and Herb Gary of North Carolina A&T in rebounds a game with 23.4.

FROM LAST TO FIRST

Eagles' Rise Credited To QB, Coach, Not Mirrors

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—How do you take a team from last place in 1958 to first in 1960—with mirrors?

"No, with a quarterback and a coach," says Vince McNally whose Philadelphia Eagles meet the Green Bay Packers here Monday for the National Football League title.

McNally, Eagles' general manager, said he decided after the 1957 season the Eagles had to clean house, coaches and players alike.

"I made three trips to California to try to sign Buck Shaw as head coach," he said. "Finally, Shaw signed."

"I wasn't home from the Coast 24 hours when my telephone rang. It was Buck. 'Oh, here I signed up and I don't even have a quarterback,' he said. 'How do you expect me to win in this league without a quarterback?'"

McNally said he told Shaw not to worry, he'd have a quarterback.

"Frankly, I didn't know where I was going to get one. Bobby Thomson had retired, which left us high and dry. Then I heard scuttlebutt through the grapevine that the (Los Angeles) Rams were thinking of trading (Norm) Van Brocklin."

"I made six or seven telephone calls and finally went to see (Pete) Rozelle (then general manager of the Rams). I beat Pittsburgh to the deal only because I had a first draft choice to trade and the Steelers didn't."

McNally also gave the Rams two players for Van Brocklin. He called Shaw in California and told him, "You have a quarterback. Who?" he asked me. Van Brocklin. "Wonderful, now we're in business," he said."

Shaw came East, took a look at the Eagles roster and made up three lists, one a nucleus he wanted to keep, the second a group he wanted improved and the third a number of players to get rid of.

The Eagles finished last in 1958 with a 2-9-1 record, but the rebuilding job was begun. In the next two seasons, McNally bought from or traded with every club in the league but Cleveland and Pittsburgh and made several key draft choices.

End Pete Retzlaff was a $100 steal from Detroit, tackle Jim McCusker and Chuck Weber came from the Cardinals, Gerry Hume was obtained from New York, former Bear Joe Robb, and ex-ed-ed Ed Khayat signed as free agents, Marion Campbell arrived from the 49ers, Bobby Freeman from Green Bay, Don Burroughs from the Rams, Jim Carr via Baltimore and Tim Brown from Green Bay.

These were combined with such Eagles standbys as Chuck Bednarik, Bobby Walston, Jess Richardson, Tom Brookshier, Bill Barnes, Clarence Peaks and Tommy McDonald, and Ted Dean, Max Baughan, and John Wilcox, drafted last winter.

Presto, from last to first.

NO NEGROES

Redskins' Racial Policy Draws Fire

By GORDON COBBLEDICK

Plain Dealer Sports Editor

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mike Nixon, a very nice man, has been fired as coach of the Washington Redskins and Bill McPeak, who is equally nice and perhaps even more personable, has been engaged in his place.

But McPeak must know that substantial improvement in the Redskins' fortunes is impossible under the club's present policy.

There has been no admission in Washington that a definite policy exists, but the evidence is convincing. The Redskins are spotting their rivals the tremendous advantage of exclusive rights to a whole race of excellent football players.

Washington has no Negro players and it can't be believed that the fact is mere happenstance. Other teams, lower in the draft list than the Redskins, have found many brilliant colored stars annually among the graduating collegians. That the 'Skins haven't found them can mean only that they haven't been looking.

Consider where the Cleveland Browns would be without Jim Brown and Bobby Mitchell, or the Baltimore Colts without Lenny Moore and Big Daddy Lipscomb. What would you think of the New York Giants' chances if they didn't have Roosevelt Grier and Roosevelt Brown at the tackles and Mel Triplett at fullback?

Negro stars have contributed football's current history — Joe Perry, Ollie Matson, Willie Gailmore, R. C. Owens, Clarence Peaks, J. C. Caroline and more than a score of others. In many cases they have spelled the difference between winning and losing seasons.

This isn't an argument for "social equality." It's a matter of practical football policy. When any club deliberately denies itself access to such a rich source of talent it cannot hope to compete, in any ordinary circumstances, with rivals who have happily and profitably broken what used to be known as the color line.

Conceivably an all-white pro football team could be assembled that would win, but the smart money wouldn't be on it. . . . From their beginnings in 1946 the football Browns have been consistently good and sometimes great, largely because they have had a chain of Negro stars from Marion Motley and Bill Willis to Brown and Mitchell.

Fans have been heard to grumble about it, but the fact is that baseball's attendance records all were set after Negroes had ceased to be a novelty in big league lineups, and pro football attendance goes up every year.

But it won't go up in Washington until the barriers are lowered.

JOINS 'BOARD OF COACHES'

Collins Thinks Cub Owner May Have The Last Laugh

CHICAGO (AP) — A one-time member of the St. Louis Cardinals' old "Gashouse Gang," James (Rip) Collins, Friday joined the Chicago Cubs' intriguing "board of coaches" and thinks Cub owner P. K. Wrigley may have the last laugh after all.

Collins was hired as the fourth man on a projected eight-coach staff which Wrigley expects to help select a new field manager in what is a complete twist in baseball tradition.

The seventh-place Cubs have been without a manager since Oct. 4 when Lou Boudreau quit after being refused a two-year pact.

Collins joins Harry Craft, Elvin Tappe and Vedic Himsl on Wrigley's coaching board. When completed, the coaching staff, besides recommending a manager, will work interchangeably with the Cubs and their farm clubs.

Collins, 55, former star first baseman for the Cardinals and Cubs, quit a sporting goods firm job after Wrigley sold him on the idea of joining the Cub staff. Collins had a nine-year major league batting average of .293. He was a member of the "Mudcat Band," a fierce musical group of the powerful Cardinals of the early 1930s.

"When I first heard about Wrigley's new plan," said Collins, "I wondered what the dickens was going on. But after a long chat with Mr. Wrigley, I am convinced there is a lot of good, sound basic sense to it."

"It will take time, of course, to work out the program, but I'm sure it will work. I'm happy to be back in baseball."

Another possible member of the Cub coaching board may be former Cub star Billy Jurges. At least, Wrigley said he wrote Jurges explaining his plan.

Under Wrigley's plan, the eventual head man may not have the title of manager. He may be known as head coach, managing director or chairman of the board, as far as the chewing gum magnate is concerned.

Commissioner Ford Frick, queried on the proposed Cub plan, said there is nothing in baseball law which requires a team to have a manager, designated as such.

"Mr. Wrigley can have a head coach if he wants," said Frick. "Anyway, this is strictly his business. The rules require only that nine men be on the field."

DEFENDING CHAMPS

Demons 6-2 Going Into Tournament

NATCHITOCHES, La. (Special) — Northwestern State College's Demons went into the Christmas holiday break with a 6-2 record after three victories on successive nights this week. The Demons will next be in action when they defend their Gulf South Classic tournament title in the big Shreveport extravaganza, December 28 through 30.

Northwestern won the title of the holiday event last year with victories over Hardin Simmons, George Washington University, and Eastern Kentucky. The Ole Miss Rebels have been picked as favorites for the upcoming meet over a fine field including the Demons, South Carolina, Middle Tennessee, Texas Western, Georgetown, Louisiana Tech and Centenary.

After a slow start during which NSC was able to win only one of three games, the Demons have come back to capture five straight. Included in the skein was a revenge victory over Stephen F. Austin, victor in a contest earlier this year.

Also included in the streak was a triumph over Southwest Texas State's Bobcats, the defending national champions of the NAIA tourney in Kansas City. Northwestern whipped the Bobcats, 70-55, to break that team's 13 game winning streak.

The other setback for the Demons was to Mississippi Southern, and Coach Huey Cranford's squad will have a chance to avenge that loss when the two teams clash in Hattiesburg, Miss., late in the season.

IN JAIL YULE PLAY

Carole Tregoff Depicts Angel

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—She was born on Christmas Day so they named her Carole.

Her last name is Tregoff and Friday she donned angel wings for a play in the women's jail depicting the birth of Christ. Sunday she will be 24—her second birthday and Christmas spent in a cell on the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice.

The booking slip says murder in capital and her attorney says not guilty just as emphatically.

Between the bars in the window on a clear day she can see the mountains 10 miles away to the north. To the northeast is the town of South Pasadena, also in view. Her mother lives there.

Just out of view to the East is another town, West Covina, where on July 18, 1959, the state of California charges a murder plot was carried out with a single shot from a revolver.

Through two murder trials the prosecution held that Carole and Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 43-year-old once-wealthy physician, killed Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch for love and money. Both trials ended in hung juries. A third is scheduled for Jan. 3.

Each Christmas, the women prisoners put on plays in the cafeteria. Carole Tregoff and 10 other women dressed in drab-colored jail dresses, read for the part of an angel. Carole was selected for the part.

She also will sing in a choral group and appear in a second skit, "The Ice House," satirizing the recent presidential election and featuring two Santa Clauses vying for top job at the North Pole.

Christmas morning she will get up at 5:30 a.m. to serve the first meal of the day to 237 other women in the pale green cell block.

As is the privilege of all prisoners, Carole will be able to have visitors that day from 10 a.m. until noon. She probably will talk with her mother and step-father through a mesh screen in a small attorney room. Also present will be a small decorated tree, the only one in the cellblock. She will not be allowed to receive presents.

Heller Given Adviser Post By Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy chose as his chief economic adviser Friday a University of Minnesota expert who writes a business system of adjusting taxes to business slumps and booms.

Dr. Walter H. Heller, 45, who said the nation is in a recession and faced with "a basic slack in the economy," will be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. This is an agency in the office of the president himself, which Kennedy said now will be revitalized and given larger responsibilities.

Kennedy, who has voiced concern with unemployment and a lack of economic vigor, said that shortly after he takes office on Jan. 20 "we will be discussing the condition of the economy and what steps could be profitably taken to improve that position." By the end of January, he said, it should be able to make a much better judgment on the future of the national economy.

This was in answer to a question whether he has any plans to combat unemployment and weakness in the economy.

Kennedy announced the Heller appointment with Heller at his side. The setting was the customary one for such business: a news conference in the patio of the Kennedy home.

Heller at present is chairman of the economic department of the University of Minnesota. He has been a tax and economic adviser to many agencies, national and international, for many years. Kennedy called him one of the country's most distinguished economists.

As Heller sees the economic picture now, the nation has been in a recession for six months and still is in one. He said there have been "three and a half years of lagging employment and growth" and two or three years of excessive gold outflow from the country.

He hopes, he said, to serve Kennedy in developing policies that will bring the economy back to its full potential — "back on the track of full employment and satisfactory growth."

The country never has recovered completely from a 1957-58 recession, Heller told reporters. "So," he said, "it is a problem not merely of dealing with a soft economy."

Local Business Generally Up, Merchants Say

Monroe merchants in a spot check yesterday indicated that shopping in Monroe for this year has shown a slight upward trend, generally speaking.

One merchant said that shoppers are being more select or cautious in their purchasing this year. A spokesman for the jewelry business in Monroe said the late shopping was picking up, but most of the women shoppers had made their purchases.

He explained that, judging from past experience, the indications point to men shoppers making their last minute purchases today and tomorrow.

Toy sales are off from seven to eight per cent according to the spot check. This category often shows up best in the late sales though.

A slight slump was experienced in the men's clothing business during November, but overall sales were said to be "holding their own."

Generally Christmas buying in Monroe seems to be as high as last year, despite the more cautious approach by the purchasers. Buyers are showing more discretion in their purchases, but they are still buying in Monroe.

The economic situation of the past six months, it is a problem of eliminating basic slack in the economy that is retarding our economic growth.

2 Buildings Damaged By Friday Fire

Flames Friday gutted Building Insulators, Inc., and damaged the cold storage department of Acme Cleaners.

Miss Anna Lee Russell owned the building housing the insulation firm. Approximately $1,000 in fiberglass was lost in the blaze.

Harold Crowley, owner-operator of Acme Cleaners, said all customers' clothes were removed from the cold storage before the fire spread.

Both firms are insured.

The fire, of undetermined origin broke out about 10 a.m.

Fire Chief H. L. Hales said three trucks from the Monroe Fire Department were used in fighting the blaze.

Passman To Ask Ouachita River Pollution Report

Congressman Otto E. Passman will return to Washington next week for the opening of Congress. He plans to ask for a pollution report on the Ouachita River.

Taking note of an announcement concerning a proposed new bromide plant at El Dorado, Passman said he would ask federal authorities to give him a report on the pollution problem.

"I think progress is being made on cleaning up the Ouachita River, but at the same time I want a report on what has been done," Passman stated.

He said the U.S. Department of the Interior could provide him with the study.

One Ouachita area official, H. K. Thatcher, said at Camden yesterday he didn't think the construction of the new multimillion dollar plant would pollute the Ouachita.

"They would have to conform with the Arkansas Water Pollution Control Commission," he said.

Thatcher is the executive secretary of the Ouachita River Valley Association.

He was contacted for comment after an announcement was made in New York that a newly-organized firm, the Arkansas Chemical Co., would build the plant at El Dorado.

At present the Arkansas Water Pollution Control Commission has a five-year plan in effect to clean up the Ouachita by stopping oil producers from dumping their disposals in the river.

Meantime, in Monroe, Passman took note of the situation and said he would take a personal interest in it. He will leave the latter part of next week.

Montgomery Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Montgomery of 3400 Gordon Ave. were the honorees at a reception held at the LaSalle Golf and Country Club in Jena December 18th from three to five o'clock. The occasion was the celebration of their 65th wedding anniversary.

Their daughters, Mrs. J. W. Tooke of Monroe and Mrs. T. S. Butler and Mr. Butler of Jena were the hostesses and host. Other descendants present were Mrs. David F. Russell and children, West Monroe, Mr. Robert M. Butler, Jena, and Mr. J. W. Tooke Jr., and children, Granada Hills, Calif.

The tea table was centered with a beautiful arrangement of red carnations and holly in a silver bowl. The holiday color was extended to the candles in the silver candelabra. A beautiful white wedding cake was placed at one end of the table. At the other end Miss Katherine Butler of Ruston presided at the silver service. Others who assisted with the courtesies were Mrs. Robert M. Butler, Mrs. J. W. Tooke, Jr., David F. Russell, Mrs. J. H. Luttrell and Mrs. Lonnie Love.

Many friends from Ponchatoula, Monroe, Alexandria, Pineville, Joyce, Tullos, Urania, Trout, Good Pine and Jena called during the appointed hours.

Mike Scanlan Dies, Rites Set

CHURCH POINT, La. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here Saturday for M. W. (Mike) Scanlan, well-known for his activities in promoting rural electric power to southwest Louisiana.

Scanlan died Friday at the age of 77.

He served for 45 years on the Arcadia Parish Police Jury and was its president for 34 years.

Scanlan was credited with forming the Southwest Louisiana Electric Membership Corporation in 1927. He was president of the world's largest rural electric association, which headquartered in Lafayette.

President-elect John F. Kennedy recently appointed Scanlan to the Natural Resources Advisory Committee.

Kennedy Win Top Event In Public Poll

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American "man in the street" picks the Kennedy election victory as 1960's biggest news story, followed by the U2 incident and collapse of the Paris summit meeting.

This was indicated Friday by a United Press International poll taken in six metropolitan areas across the United States. A cross section of citizens was asked to choose the "ten biggest stories of 1960."

Those polled included waitresses, salesmen, grocers, elevator operators, cab drivers, executives, housewives, students, clerks, a stock and bond analyst, parking lot attendants, merchants, store managers, policemen, steelworkers, social workers, librarians, maintenance men—varied a list as possible.

The "man in the street" vote totals from Boston, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Chicago, and Dallas — produced a 10 - biggest list that differed with that voted by UPI subscribing editors last week. It left out four stories selected by the editors: the Congo's troubles, the heads-of-state United Nations General Assembly, Hurricane Donna, and the Pittsburgh Pirates World Series win.

It divided the editors' No. 2 — U2 and aftermath — into two stories. The poll was made before the New York air collision of last weekend. Here are the two lists:

Man-In-Street
1. Kennedy's election.
2. U-2 incident.
3. Khrushchev summit break-up.
4. Ike-Japan trip canceled.
5. Chessman executed.
6. Negro sit-ins.
7. (tie) Cuba: Triton.

Living Costs Rise To New Record Peak

The department's November index stood at 127.4, up 1.4 per cent over a year ago. The rise of one-tenth of 1 per cent from October marked the ninth time this year the index has gone up. Once it declined and once it held steady.

The November rise will mean wage increases—two cents an hour in most cases—for some 225,000 workers covered by contracts tied to the cost of living index.

In blaming meat prices for part of the development, the department said they declined an average of only 0.3 per cent in November, the smallest such dip in at least 15 years.

This was not enough to offset higher price tags on fresh vegetables, such as lettuce, snap beans and tomatoes. As a result, overall food prices increased from October to November for the first time since 1951.

The Labor Department's food price index stood at 121.1, an increase of 2.7 per cent over a year ago, but still below the July, 1958, record of 121.7.

The price index also was pushed higher by price hikes for movie admissions and hospitalization insurance. Movie admissions cost more "because of increased charges for children's tickets and the prevalence of special features," the Labor Department said.

Newspaper prices also were up because of "increased publishing as well as distribution costs."

Newspaper prices in November averaged 3.3 per cent higher than last year.

Although the overall movement was up, prices declined on several items, including clothing, new houses, medicine, and some fresh foods. Grapefruit was down 25 per cent and banana prices dropped 6 per cent.

Area Man's Name Goes On Memorial

The name of James M. Frazier, a northeast Louisiana Republican of Waverly, will be inscribed on a memorial to President Eisenhower in the National Park at Gettysburg, Pa.

The memorial will commemorate the nomination of Eisenhower in 1952. Frazier was a national republican delegate from the Fifth District in 1952.

9. Eichmann.
10. Polaris.

IN CONGRESS

Kennedy Facing Many Problems

Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP)—The early moves of President-elect John F. Kennedy's new administration probably will revolve more around his shrewdness in handling Congress than on what he proposes to do about problems at home.

Overseas he'll have his hands full.

Judging from the starting program he intends to lay before Congress, where his Democrats far outnumber the Republicans he will neither suggest nor try anything startling.

The proposals he talks about were all part of the campaign promises he made. They didn't get through Congress last year. For instance, medical care for the aged tied to Social Security. So he'll try again as he is pledged to.

If Southern Democrats and Republicans band together, they can mess him up. Some Republicans talk of such a coalition.

But it seems unlikely the Democratic-run House—where the Democrats outnumber the Republicans 260 to 177—will start off trying to frustrate Kennedy. It would be a sorry reception for their party's new leader.

In the Senate, where the Democrats are still in charge with a majority of 65 to 35 Republicans, Kennedy will have some real pros working as his chief lieutenants: Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

It is important to both Johnson and Mansfield, who succeeds him as Democratic leader, to see the Kennedy administration get off to a good start. A defeat for Kennedy would be a personal defeat for them.

But it's in the foreign field that Kennedy and his administrators and advisors probably will feel they're walking through a dark jungle.

Besides trying to deal with the Russians and Premier Khrushchev, Kennedy must find some way to keep the people of Southeast Asia and Latin America on the U.S. side.

In Africa, both the people and their new nations are literally just coming alive as an active force in a world where for centuries they were kept in second-class citizen status as colonialists. That continent will be explosive for years.

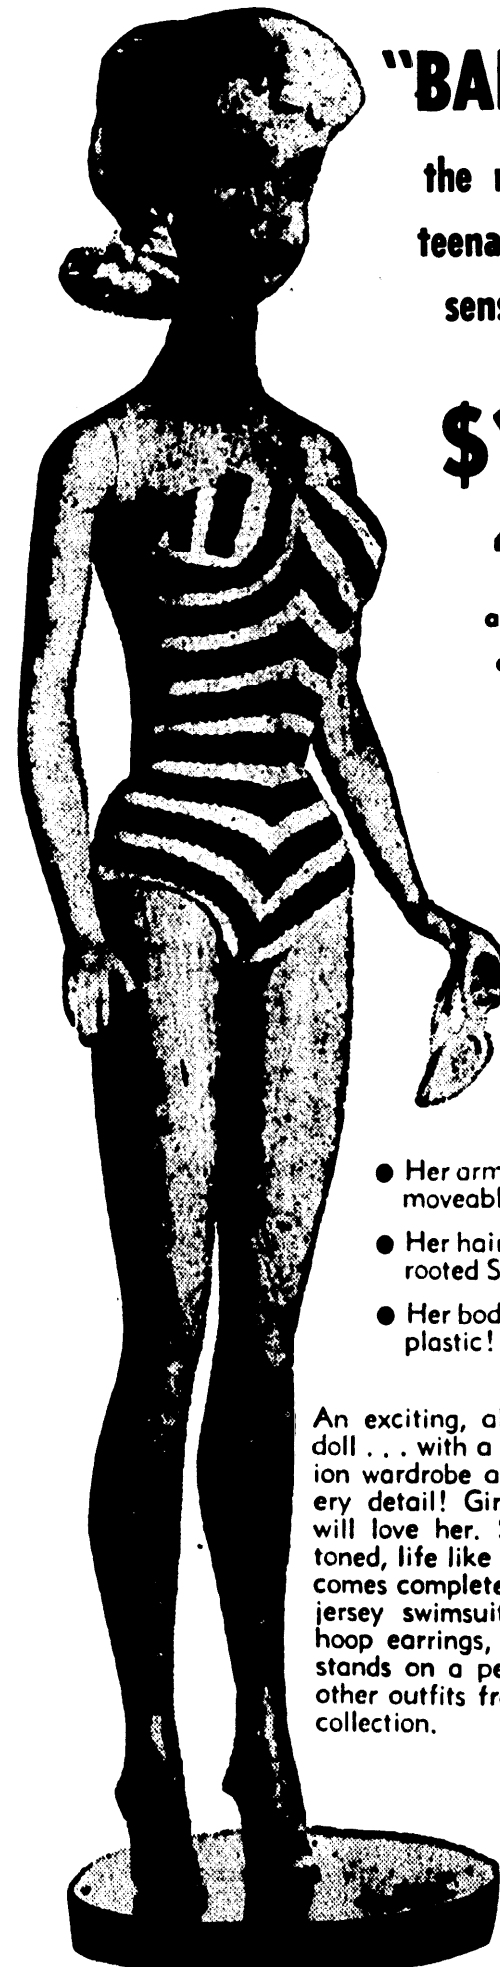

The Kennedy administration somehow must find a way to convince the millions of Africans that their future will be better with the West.

Any critical showdown with the Soviet Union during Kennedy's administration may come first in Africa.

And even with American allies in Europe, Kennedy must keep the alliance not only alive but cooperative.

On top of all this, and yet critically related to it, Kennedy must subdue the flow of American gold overseas, keep trade healthy, and at the same time build American defenses to a point discouraging Soviet ambitions.

IN JAIL YULE PLAY

Carole Tregoff Depicts Angel

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—She was born on Christmas Day so they named her Carole.

Her last name is Tregoff and Friday she donned angel wings for a play in the women's jail depicting the birth of Christ. Sunday she will be 24—her second birthday and Christmas spent in a cell on the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice.

The booking slip says murder in capital and her attorney says not guilty just as emphatically.

Between the bars in the window on a clear day she can see the mountains 10 miles away to the north. To the northeast is the town of South Pasadena, also in view. Her mother lives there.

Just out of view to the East is another town, West Covina, where on July 18, 1959, the state of California charges a murder plot was carried out with a single shot from a revolver.

Through two murder trials the prosecution held that Carole and Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 43-year-old once-wealthy physician, killed Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch for love and money. Both trials ended in hung juries. A third is scheduled for Jan. 3.

Each Christmas, the women prisoners put on plays in the cafeteria. Carole Tregoff and 10 other women dressed in drab-colored jail dresses, read for the part of an angel. Carole was selected for the part.

She also will sing in a choral group and appear in a second skit, "The Ice House," satirizing the recent presidential election and featuring two Santa Clauses vying for top job at the North Pole.

Christmas morning she will get up at 5:30 a.m. to serve the first meal of the day to 237 other women in the pale green cell block.

As is the privilege of all prisoners, Carole will be able to have visitors that day from 10 a.m. until noon. She probably will talk with her mother and step-father through a mesh screen in a small attorney room. Also present will be a small decorated tree, the only one in the cellblock. She will not be allowed to receive presents.

Heller Given Adviser Post By Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy chose as his chief economic adviser Friday a University of Minnesota expert who wants a built-in system of adjusting taxes to business slumps and booms.

Dr. Walter H. Heller, 45, who said the nation is in a recession and faced with "a basic slack in the economy," will be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. This is an agency, in the office of the president himself, which Kennedy said now will be revitalized and given larger responsibilities.

Kennedy, who has voiced concern with unemployment and a lack of economic vigor, said that shortly after he takes office on Jan. 20 "we will be discussing the condition of the economy and what steps could be profitably taken to improve that position." By the end of January, he said, it should be able to make a much better judgment on the future of the national economy.

This was in answer to a question whether he has any plans to combat unemployment and weakness in the economy.

Kennedy announced the Heller appointment with Heller at his side. The setting was the customary one for such business: a news conference in the patio of the Kennedy home.

Heller at present is chairman of the economic department at the University of Minnesota. He has been a tax and economic adviser to many agencies, national and international, for many years. Kennedy called him one of the country's most distinguished economists.

As Heller sees the economic picture now, the nation has been in a recession for six months and still is in one. He said there have been "three and a half years of lagging employment and growth" and two or three years of excessive gold outflow from the country.

He hopes, he said, to serve Kennedy in developing policies that will bring the economy back to its full potential — "back on the track of full employment and satisfactory growth."

The country never has recovered completely from a 1957-58 recession, Heller told reporters. "So," he said, "it is a problem not merely of dealing with a soft

Local Business Generally Up, Merchants Say

Monroe merchants in a spot check yesterday indicated that shopping in Monroe for this year has shown a slight upward trend generally speaking.

One merchant said that shoppers are being more select or cautious in their purchasing this year. A spokesman for the jewelry business in Monroe said the late shopping was picking up, but most of the women shoppers had made their purchases.

He explained that, judging from past experience, the indications point to men shoppers making their last minute purchases today and tomorrow.

Toy sales are off from seven to eight per cent according to the spot check. This category often shows up best in the late sales though.

A slight slump was experienced in the men's clothing business during November but overall sales were said to be "holding their own."

Generally Christmas buying in Monroe seems to be as high as last year, despite the more cautious approach by the purchasers. Buyers are showing more discretion in their purchases, but they are still buying in Monroe.

economic situation of the past six months; it is a problem of eliminating basic slack in the economy that is retarding our economic growth."

2 Buildings Damaged By Friday Fire

Flames Friday gutted Building Insulators, Inc. and damaged the cold storage department of Acme Cleaners.

The fire erupted suddenly in the first building and spread quickly to the cleaners department.

Firemen pumped water on the smoking damages for an hour after the flames were put out.

Miss Anna Lee Russell owned the building housing the insulation firm. Approximately $1,000 in fiberglass was lost in the blaze.

Harold Crowley, owner - operator of Acme Cleaners, said all customers' clothes were removed from the cold storage before the fire spread.

Both firms are insured.

The fire, of undetermined origin broke out about 10 a.m.

Fire Chief H. L. Hales said three trucks from the Monroe Fire Department were used in fighting the blaze.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Saturday, Dec. 24, the 359th day of the year with seven more in 1960. Today is Christmas Eve.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1809, American frontiersman, soldier and trapper Christopher (Kit) Carson was born.

In 1814, the War of 1812 ended with the signing of a peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain in Ghent, Belgium.

In 1871, Verdi's spectacular opera "Aida" had its world premiere in Cairo, Egypt.

In 1949, the most popular Christmas song in America was "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

In 1951, Libya was proclaimed a free and independent nation.

Thought for today: British playwright and novelist George Bernard Shaw said: "The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel."

Living Costs Rise To New Record Peak

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Living costs rose to another all-time high in November, partly because meat prices failed to show their usual seasonal decline, the Labor Department said Friday.

The department's November index stood at 127.4, up 1.4 per cent over a year ago. The rise of one-tenth of 1 per cent from October marked the ninth time this year the index has gone up. Once it declined and once it held steady.

The November rise will mean wage increases—two cents an hour in most cases—for some 225,000 workers covered by contracts tied to the cost of living index.

In blaming meat prices for part of the development, the department said they declined an average of only 0.3 per cent in November, the smallest such dip in at least 15 years.

This was not enough to offset higher price tags on fresh vegetables, such as lettuce, snap beans and tomatoes. As a result, overall food prices increased from October to November for the first time since 1951.

The Labor Department's food price index stood at 121.1, an increase of 2.7 per cent over a year ago, but still below the July, 1958, record of 121.7.

The price index also was pushed higher by price hikes for movie admissions and hospitalization insurance. Movie admissions cost more "because of increased charges for children's tickets and the prevalence of special features," the Labor Department said.

Newspaper prices also were up because of "increased publishing as well as distribution costs."

Newspaper prices in November averaged 3.3 per cent higher than last year.

Although the overall movement was up, prices declined on several items, including clothing, new houses, medicine, and some fresh foods. Grapefruit was down 25 per cent and banana prices dropped 6 per cent.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American "man in the street" picks the Kennedy election victory as 1960's biggest news story, followed by the U2 incident and collapse of the Paris summit meeting.

This was indicated Friday by a United Press International poll taken in six metropolitan areas across the United States. A cross section of citizens was asked to choose the "ten biggest stories of 1960."

Those polled included waitresses, salesmen, grocers, elevator operators, cab drivers, executives, housewives, students, clerks, a stock and bond analyst, parking lot attendants, merchants, store managers, policemen, steelworkers, social workers, librarians, maintenance men—as varied a list as possible.

The "man in street" vote totals from Boston, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Chicago, and Dallas — produced a 10 - biggest list that differed with that voted by UPI subscribing editors last week. It left out four stories selected by the editors: the Congo's troubles, the heads-of-state United Nations General Assembly, Hurricane Donna, and the Pittsburgh Pirate World Series win.

It selected three stories the editors left out: U.S. submarine Triton's voyage around the world, Nazi executioner Eichmann's capture, and the Polaris missile.

It divided the editors' No. 2-U2 and aftermath—into two stories. The poll was made before the New York air collision last weekend. Here are the two lists:

Kennedy Facing Many Problems

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The early moves of President-elect John F. Kennedy's new administration probably will revolve more around his shrewdness in handling Congress than on what he proposes to do about problems at home.

Overseas he'll have his hands full.

Judging from the starting program he intends to lay before Congress, where his Democrats far outnumber the Republicans he will suggest nor try anything startling.

The proposals he talks about were all part of the campaign promises he made. They didn't get through Congress last year. For instance, medical care for the aged tied to Social Security. So he'll try again as he is pledged to.

If Southern Democrats and Republicans band together, they can mess him up. Some Republicans talk of such a coalition.

But it seems unlikely the Democratic-run House—where the Democrats outnumber the Republicans 260 to 177—will start off

MONROE MORNING WORLD

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS, and little Michael Joe Screpitis reflects the excitement of children around the area as he eagerly awaits the arrival of Santa Claus. This wide-eyed youngster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Screpitis, 315 1/2 Haynes Street, West Monroe.

Mrs. Chambless Hostess To Eros HDC Party

Mrs. Corinne Chambless was hostess to the Christmas party of the Eros Home Demonstration Club, Friday, December 16 at 1:30 p.m.

The door of the home was decorated with a large silver star and with holly and red berries. In the reception room, members placed gifts beneath a silver Christmas tree. The room was decorated with holly and other yuletide ornaments.

Miss Vera Canady, president, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Ollie Stuckey, Mrs. W. E. Rape, Mrs. C. A. Chatham and Mrs. Chambless read Christmas stories.

Mrs. Chatham then led the group in games. The prize was won by Mrs. Chatham. Gifts were distributed among the members.

Coffee, spiced tea and holiday cookies were served from a table adorned with Christmas decorations.

Present to enjoy the party were Mrs. J. P. Maxwell of West Monroe, Mrs. Ollie Stuckey, Miss Vera Canady, Mrs. W. E. Rape, Mrs. C. A. Chatham, Mrs. Alton Stuckey, Mrs. R. N. Hearne, Mrs. A. M. Harper, Mrs. W. A. Downs, Mrs. O. F. Wheelis, Mrs. Keith Yeager, Miss Hazel Chambless and Miss Charlotte Wheelis, Mrs. Kenneth Salisbury.

Bride-Elect Announces Plans For Wedding

Miss Almedia Lee Babb of Lake Providence, announces plans for her marriage December 25, to William Bernard Jr. of West Monroe.

The Rev. George York, pastor of the Lake Providence First Methodist church, will officiate.

Sisters of the bride will be her attendants: Mrs. Ted Bull of Boonton, New Jersey, the former Miss Katherine Babb, will be the maid of honor; Miss Carolyn Babb, the maid of honor; and bridesmaids will be Miss Frances Babb and Miss Carolyn Lueg, sister of the bridegroom - elect.

John Babb, brother of the bride-elect, will serve as ring bearer. To attend the groom-elect will be his brother, Carlton Lueg of West Monroe. Groomsmen and ushers are to be Don Allen of Dallas, Texas, Ronald Avery of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Don Williams of West Monroe.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Barham in serving were Mrs. E. D. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. Nelson Abell, Mrs. Abner Wimberly, Mrs. E. A. Barham, Mrs. Leo Terzia Jr. and Mrs. Louis Miller.

Out of town guests were from Jones, Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Oak Grove, Delhi, Girard, Rayville, Monroe and Collinston.

OPEN HOUSE
An open house held on Saturday evening from 7 to 10 in the home of Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Sr. with Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Jr. as co-hosts. They chose the occasion to honor Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Pipes. Mr. Pipes has just returned from service overseas, and his wife has been attending Auburn college.

As the guests approached the Pipes home a gaily decorated lamp illuminated the walkway. The lamp post was wrapped with evergreen rope with a huge white bow at the top and falling downward were large snow balls. A floodlight shone on the entrance door which was decorated to simulate a Christmas package, all tied with gay red ribbon and centered with bright balls. Each window held lighted candles.

Guests were greeted by Henry A. Pipes Jr. at the entrance and invited into living room where Mrs. Pipes Sr., in black brocade satin, received with Caleb, Mrs. Caleb Pipes in green chiffon, and Mrs. Henry Pipes Jr., in red velvet. All three were wearing Christmas corsages.

Arrangements of gold, pink and white dried and gilded materials were used in the living room, and on the mantel were bisque figurines decorated with Christmas bells, balls and beads interspersed with greenery. On the grand piano stood two big pink candles flanked by reindeer. Of note, was the desk holding a Bible opened to the Christmas story in St. Luke. The dining table was covered Present to share the occasion were their children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frost and Suzanne, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. DuPont, Richard and Gail; and Mr. Howard Robinson, Robert and Cheryl. Mr. DuPont chose this occasion to present his wife with a ruby and diamond ring.

Gala Holiday Parties Given In Oak Ridge

Two outstanding holiday parties given last weekend contributed to the festive Christmas spirit prevailing in Oak Ridge. Scene of the parties were the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph West Barham, and the home of Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Barham were hosts on Saturday evening at their lovely new colonial home on Duval Plantation.

The front door was enhanced with an old fashioned Christmas wreath of holly tied with a huge red bow and on one end of the long porch was a lighted tree. On a marble topped table in the foyer was a silver egg warmer holding holly and red berries. In the living room was an arrangement of red carnations and variegated holly in a silver bun warmer, and on the piano were silver candelabra holding ted tapers.

At the end of the hall was a marble topped commode on which was placed the traditional Christmas tree. The family room mantel held an array of tiny Christmas figurines, and red candles. Above this was a large wicker tree decorated with red ribbon bows and holly.

Centering the polished mahogany table was a silver epergne holding an arrangement of red carnations and variegated holly. On one end was placed a silver coffee service and on the other, a silver punch bowl. Appointments of silver with dainty sandwiches and confections completed the table.

MRS. JOHN LEE WOOTEN and son, John, of Shreveport are guests for the weekend in the home of Mrs. J. R. Wooten and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Slagle Sr.

VISITING IN THE CITY for the holiday are Mrs. Frank C. Mears and children, Marilyn and Steve, of New Orleans. They are guests in the home of Mrs. Mears' parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Moffett.

GUESTS IN THE home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farmer, 304 Hilton, are Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Lee of Atlanta, Georgia, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Parker of Shreveport.

THE GEORGE ROMANOS on Speed Avenue have as guests in their home, their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Purvis and son, David.

HOLIDAY VISITORS in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Albright are Mr. Albright's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Albright of Paris, Texas. Also home for the holidays is Miss Nancy Albright from Northwestern State College.

A GALA HOLIDAY anniversary was celebrated last night by Mr. and Mrs. M. E. DuPont. Present to share the occasion were their children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frost and Suzanne, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. DuPont, Richard and Gail; and Mr. Howard Robinson, Robert and Cheryl. Mr. DuPont chose this occasion to present his wife with a ruby and diamond ring.

Gala Holiday Parties Given In Oak Ridge

Two outstanding holiday parties given last weekend contributed to the festive Christmas spirit prevailing in Oak Ridge. Scene of the parties were the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph West Barham, and the home of Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Barham were hosts on Saturday evening at their lovely new colonial home on Duval Plantation.

The front door was enhanced with an old fashioned Christmas wreath of holly tied with a huge red bow and on one end of the long porch was a lighted tree. On a marble topped table in the foyer was a silver egg warmer holding balsam and red berries. In the living room was an arrangement of red carnations and variegated holly in a silver bun warmer, and on the piano were silver candelabra holding red tapers.

At the end of the hall was a marble topped commode on which was placed the traditional Christmas tree. The family room mantel held an array of tiny Christmas figurines, and red candles. Above this was a large wicker tree decorated with red ribbon bows and holly.

Centering the polished mahogany table was a silver egg warmer holding an arrangement of red carnations and variegated holly. On one end was placed a silver coffee service and on the other a silver punch bowl. Appointments of silver with dainty sandwiches and confections completed the table.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Barham in serving were Mrs. E. D. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. Nelson Abell, Mrs. Abner Wimberly, Mrs. E. A. Barham, Mrs. Leo Terzia Jr. and Mrs. Louis Miller.

Out of town guests were from Jones, Mer Rouge, Bastrop, Oak Grove, Delhi, Girard, Rayville, Monroe and Collinston.

OPEN HOUSE

An open house held on Saturday evening from 7 to 10 in the home of Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Sr. with Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Pipes Jr. as co-hosts. They chose the occasion to honor Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Pipes. Mr. Pipes has just returned from service overseas, and his wife has been attending Auburn college.

As the guests approached the Pipes home a gaily decorated lamp illuminated the walkway. The lamppost was wrapped with evergreen rope with a huge white bow at the top and falling downward were large snow balls. A floodlight shone on the entrance door which was decorated to simulate a Christmas package, all tied with gay red ribbon and centered with bright balls. Each window held lighted candles.

Guests were greeted by Henry A. Pipes Jr. at the entrance and invited into living room where Mrs. Pipes Sr., in black brocade satin, received with Caleb, Mrs. Caleb Pipes in green chiffon, and Mrs. Henry Pipes Jr., in red velvet. All three were wearing Christmas corsages.

Arrangements of gold, pink and white dried and gilded materials were used in the living room, and on the mantel were bisque figurines decorated with Christmas bells, balls and beads interspersed with greenery. On the grand piano stood two big pink candles flanked by reindeer. Of note, was the desk holding a Bible opened to the Christmas story in St. Luke. The dining table was covered

East Carroll GC Meets With Mrs. Tyrone

The December meeting of the East Carroll Garden Club was held in the home of Mrs. Kirby Tyrone with Mrs. R. S. Reed and Mrs. C. R. Brown as co-hostesses.

A gaily decorated entrance greeted the guests as the hostess welcomed them into the reception rooms, where lovely Christmas arrangements added to the festive season.

Mrs. W. Y. Bell, president, welcomed the guests, Mrs. H. P. DuBose and Miss Bobby Sue Hogan, and presided over a short business meeting.

Mrs. J. P. Davis had charge of the program, in which all members participated by making Christmas favors for hospital trays and feeding wreaths for the birds.

Each member brought gifts for a Christmas box, which they voted to contribute to a needy family sponsored by Teen Town.

Those present were: Mrs. Frank Phillips, Mrs. Paul Voney, Mrs. C. A. Rose, Mrs. W. Y. Bell, Mrs. John C. Bass, Mrs. W. P. Rushing, Mrs. J. P. Rummel Extends Greetings From Hospital Room

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, 85-year-old Roman Catholic prelate of New Orleans, today extended a Christmas greeting from his hospital room to those of his faith and fellow citizens. Rummel, injured in a fall Oct. 9, will spend Christmas in his bedroom at Our Lady of the Lake Hospital here. He received a arm and leg fracture in the fall. A hospital report described the archbishop as being in perfect health and "the knitting of injury to his bones progressing toward full recovery in the most satisfactory manner."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y Z L B A A N R
is L O N G F E L L O W
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

U.S. Dollar, Gold Flow Abroad High

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Friday that the flow of U. S. gold and dollars abroad soared above four billion dollars a year proportions during the summer.

The Commerce Department estimated that during July, August and September the outflow was at a rate that could produce a total of $4,129,000,000 annually — the highest three-month figure of 1960.

The report pinpointed the international financial problem which has perplexed and worried both the Eisenhower administration and incoming President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The department placed most of the blame on the flow of "hot money," a definition for cash shifted from one country to another to take advantage of higher interest rates or for other speculative purposes.

During the quarter, funds were withdrawn from the United States and sent to England, Germany and other countries in Europe where investments were paying more. In addition, foreigners who bought U. S. stocks and bonds in the spring sold them in the summer and invested their money elsewhere.

For the first nine months of the year, the deficit in U. S. international accounts which means the excess of money spent abroad over money earned abroad reached an annual red ink rate of $3.2 billion.

This made it likely that the 1960 deficit would come to about $3.5 billion.

Depending on developments in October, November and December, the deficit might go even higher even though U. S. officials are hopeful that the outflow of "hot money" has abated because of interest rate reductions abroad.

To curb the drain on U. S. dollars and gold, President Eisenhower has ordered a sharp reduction in the number of service men's wives and children overseas and has called for increased U. S. exports.

He also has directed that government foreign aid and military supplies be bought from U. S. rather than foreign firms, whenever possible.

How To Keep Well

MEDICAL BROWSING
Some people are foolish, as demonstrated by the woman who became ill after eating more than half an ounce of nutmeg. This popular flavoring agent is harmless when sprinkled on eggnogs and other foods or beverages. At one time it was used as a medication, as were many herbs, seeds, and plants.

But too much nutmeg is poisonous, as the woman in question found out. She awakened in the night with a burning sensation in the lower abdomen which was so severe she feared she was dying. She became disoriented and screamed and thrashed about until she fell into a semi-stupor. On coming to, she became overactive again and screamed about dying but finally fell into a deep sleep. On awakening she was dizzy, nauseated, and numb all over but quiet. At intervals her restless and noisy episodes returned but she got well ultimately.

The technic of pill swallowing is mastered easily by some. Others find it difficult and Dr. Myron S. Denholtz's method may work better than hiding the pill in a piece of bread. He advises: "Raise the tongue and place the pill or capsule in the floor of the mouth, just behind the lower teeth. In this position, the bitterest pill causes no taste unless held for a long time. "Holding the tongue in the elevated position, a glass of water is brought to the lips and the patient drinks, completely ignoring the pill behind his teeth. During the process of swallowing, the medication disappears down the throat without taste or sensation." Down the hatch.

Early studies indicated that the cholesterol level of the blood of alcoholics was lower than that of nonalcoholics. But a more recent test on 30 volunteer prisoners reversed this theory. These men were given 30 ounces of whisky daily and the blood was checked. The net result was a rise in blood cholesterol.

Keep this in mind when you indulge in holiday cheer.

GENERALIZED ARTERIOSCLEROSIS
E. R. writes: What are the symptoms of hardening of the arteries in the different parts of the body?

REPLY
It would take a book to answer this question. Hardening of the arteries may exist for decades before the circulation to a specific organ is reduced sufficiently to cause symptoms. If a vessel leading to the brain is blocked, stroke occurs; involvement of the coronary arteries produces chest pain (angina or coronary thrombosis); and plugging of a leg artery causes pain or gangrene.

BOILS ARE INFECTIONS
Mrs. S. T. writes: My husband gets boils frequently. Are they contagious?

REPLY
Yes, provided some of the infected secretions escape from the boil onto the skin of a susceptible person.

DEFORMED TOE

"EXODUS" OPENED TO ONE OF THE most glamorous, black tie and big name audiences ever to turn out for a movie—the celebrity list running the gamut from Adlia Stevenson to Joan Fontaine. As entertainment, the picture is difficult to evaluate: a dedicated Zionist might feel that the subject rated a four-hour treatment, but a filmgoer not racially or religiously involved is apt to become a bit restive two-thirds of the way through. What saves it is Paul Newman—you can't hate four hours of HIM. All the members of the huge and expensive cast give splendid performances, but the message of the plot is well lost in the necessity to entertain the audience. What "Exodus" seems to be saying is that men of all races and creeds should iron out their difficulties by talking, not fighting or killing, but what makes the movie sporadically exciting is not the talking but the fighting and the killing. The best scene is a marvelously detailed enactment of a prison break in which almost 100 are killed, and there are explosions and murders all over the place. If Eva Marie Saint clobbered the cameraman who photographed her there isn't a judge in the world who'd convict her. On the other hand, one shot taken in a hospital—showing Jill Haworth's father through a doorway—is sheer poetry.

If the producers do decide to cut "Exodus" a bit here and there, they might start by clipping the obvious boo-boo—the hanged man who winks, the dead hand that closes the car door, and the frames that show Eva Marie, a widow lady, going to bed wearing a brassiere under her pajamas. (How do you explain that?)

On the east side of town, Sammy Davis Jr., returned to the Copacabana and gave the customers an hour and 25 minutes of solid entertainment. His impressions of other singers and actors are spookily accurate, he does a thrilling number with nothing but drums accompanying him and he dances and throws funcho-

NERVOUS STOMACH
C. B. H. writes: What causes excitement or nervousness to settle in the stomach or intestines?
REPLY
The gastrointestinal tract is the sounding board for many nervous episodes. This occurs because of a close tie-up between the nervous system and these organs via the vagus nerve. Cutting this nerve was described some years ago as "divorcing the stomach from the brain."

His impressions of other singers and actors are spookily accurate, he does a thrilling number with nothing but drums accompanying him and he dances and throws furniture.

The number one song on Belgium's hit parade is called "Fabiola, Fabiola, Fabiola." Three guesses as to whom it's dedicated. Within the past 24 hours, enemies took another shot at Fidel Castro in his beach house at Coljimar. One of his aides was killed but his date, a movie actress escaped uninjured. Tina Turner, currently at the International, has dyed her hair "apricot" to blend with the decor of her new apartment. Racket czar Vito Genovese has more than $200,000 stuck in a Havana Casino and can't sell it for $25,000. A chap often itemed in the society columns as a Wall Street-er is even better known to the FBI. They have a dossier on him as an international confidence man that would make any "society" editor blink several times. Fame certainly is fleeting, if you're in a mood to take a cliché out of the mothballs. Example: An art theatre in Inwood, Queens, is advertising the movie "Ecstasy" without any billing at all for Hedy Lamarr, who was the brightest star of her day.

Woman Should Order Sister-In-Law To Move

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am 12 years old and having a big fight with my parents. They think I should go to bed at 8:30 at night during the week. All the good TV shows go on then and I don't get any entertainment all night. Please answer in the paper and tell me what you think of parents who like to watch TV themselves but don't let their kids watch. — TREATED TERRIBLE

Dear Terrible: You say "all the good shows go on after 8:30." Like what? If you tell me which "good" shows you want to stay up for I'll write to your parents in your behalf—if I agree.

I haven't seen many TV shows of late worth looking at—day "or" night. Some excellent ones like Mr. Wizard, Kukla, Fran and Ollie and The Search were thrown off to make way for more shoot-em ups and murder stories. You rattled the wrong cage, Junior.

Cookies For Santa An Old Custom

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — A child who puts cookies out for Santa Claus on Christmas Eve is perpetuating a custom that predates the holiday itself.

The cookie custom first started when confections were served to Roman senators during the pre-Christian festival of Saturn, says the Pan-American Coffee Bureau.

Sweden's modern Julmitten is a red-custumed, white-bearded little man, a congenial counterpart of Santa Claus. But legend says he once guarded Swedish farms, and had to be wooed with a big bowl of porridge to guarantee the safety of farm buildings and productivity of farm animals for the coming year.

In pre-Christian days, nomadic Laplanders in northern Sweden made a sacrifice to Yuletide people who were believed to fly over the earth on Christmas Eve.

To ward off danger, the Lapps fasted that night. The food they would have eaten, plus bits of their Christmas day dinner, were put into a boat-shaped basket that was hung in a tree about a gunshot's distance from the family hut.

Denmark's gift-carrier is a gnome called Jule-nisse. He is left risengrød, or rice pudding, with an extra lump of butter, a favorite dessert of Danish children.

In southern Greece and the Tyrol, Christmas Eve snacks take on religious significance. In the former, special flat loaves of bread are left on the dinner table at night in the belief that Christ, St. Basil will come to eat. And in the Tyrol, a pan of milk is left out for the Christ child and his mother.

Two weeks later she found a steady job, with good pay. This is a year later, Ann, and they are still in our house and show no sign of moving out. She used to go out looking for apartments (found something wrong with every single one) but she doesn't even look any more.

I have three children of my own and I'm exhausted from "my" work, not to mention hers. She thinks because she works all day she shouldn't do anything at night. I take care of her kids just as I do my own, do their laundry, and cook for the whole gang.

She pays $14 a week for everything. It doesn't even cover the grocery bill. My husband sits there like a dummy. What can I do? —DISH RAG

Dear Rag: You sound like a "pair" of dummies to me. Tell Her Royal Highness she has just two weeks to find a place or she'll have to go to a hotel. Remind her every day that she has just two weeks left (you know, ten more shopping days till Christmas). When she discovers you mean business, she'll leave—and not until.

Dear Ann: If I don't get some help I'll crack up. I am 25 and have made lots of mistakes in my life. Two years ago I met a man who was willing to accept me, knowing I was no angel. He assured me he loved me and nothing else mattered.

We live together and everyone thinks we are married. I learned recently that I'm pregnant. I want to get married right away but he doesn't. He firmly believes that marriage ruins love and that it's nobody's business what we do, so long as we treat each other right.

I have talked to him until I am blue in the face and I can't get him to see it my way. Please, Ann, where do I go from here? —MIXED UP

Dear Mixed Up: Ever try to get a farmer to buy oats for a dead horse? Same thing. Your only hope is to tell him you'll settle for nothing short of marriage now that a child is on the way, and stick to your guns even if it means going it alone.

DEAR ABBY

Salami Sounds Like A Whole Lot Of Baloney

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am stupid, but is there really any such thing as sleepwalking or is that something people joke about? My husband was put on a 1000-calorie diet. Last night, about midnight, I heard the refrigerator door slam, so I got up and found Orville gone from our bed. I went to the kitchen (all the lights were on) and he was standing there, barefoot and in his pajamas, eating a piece of salami. I yelled, "Orville!"

He dropped the salami and acted like he just came out of a trance. He claims he doesn't know how he got there and must have been walking in his sleep. Do you think he's telling me the truth? —DOUBTING MRS.

DEAR DOUBTING: His salami story sounds like a lot of baloney to me.

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me what to do about a man who will not keep himself clean? We have been married 45 years and it is a fight to get him to take a bath on the week-end. When he goes fishing he comes home covered with dirt and fly dope and he won't take a bath because he did it before he left.

He is retired and has plenty of time. I am so ashamed of him I could cry. When he gets up in the morning he never washes his face because he says he will do it when he shaves. Please help. —BETTER HALF

DEAR BETTER: Start early in the morning to nag this man, and nag him every hour of the day until he breaks down and takes a bath. If he has always been this way, then you ought to have a doctor examine your nose. If this is something new, he ought to have a doctor examine his head.

DEAR ABBY: Correct me if I am wrong, but isn't the purpose of a funeral service to (1) pay your final respects to the departed one, (2) ask the Lord to be merciful when the deceased enters the Great Unknown, (3) hear a few comforting words directed to the friends and family of the one who is laid to rest?

I just returned from a funeral, and the clergyman took advantage of the large attendance to announce (1) the mortgage had to be paid off for the recreation center, (2) people must stop parking their cars on the neighbors' lawns on Sunday, (3) the Ladies Auxiliary rummage sale needs support.

Am I overly sensitive, or was this out of order? —INDIGNANT

DEAR INDIGNANT: You are not "overly sensitive." The clergyman was out of order for advertising when he should have been eulogizing.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

'Cheer Table' For Holiday Entertaining

Wondering how to simplify Christmas week entertaining without cutting down on hospitality?

It's really easy. How? Greet your holiday guests with an inviting "Christmas cheer table." Any small table will do, especially if it is surfaced with an easily cleaned, heatproof material such as ceramic tile. Set the table up where it won't interfere with family activity and leave it there all through the holidays.

Serve simple, easily prepared snacks, planned in advance, for morning and afternoon callers. Make adequate supplies of holiday beverage mixes and store them in the freezer. Keep a big jar filled with cookies and other sweetmeats for a hit with the small fry.

But keep food to a minimum.

We make ANYTHING out of ORNAMENTAL IRON — Sturdy, lifetime GARAGES, GATES, and FENCES just to mention a few. SEE US FOR THE BEST AT LOW COST.

Holiday Parties Sponsored By Madison Clubs

The monthly meeting of the Madison Parish Home Demonstration Council for December featured a book review and annual Christmas party with the exchange of gifts.

Miss Willie Mae Seab, librarian for Madison and Tensas parishes, presented an interesting review of "The Road I Came" by Paul Jordan - Smith.

Mrs. George Rogan gave the international report on Christmas observances in other countries, and a quartet from the Warsaw Club sang several appropriate selections.

Delicious refreshments were served by a committee of the Walnut Bayou Club.

GARDEN CLUBS

The Tallulah Home Gardeners entertained members of all garden clubs of Tallulah and other friends at a Holiday House tea on Thursday afternoon, December 14. The festive event took place at the home of Mrs. Paul A. Schwartz which was adorned throughout with appropriate yuletide decorations.

The entrance featured a red, white, and gold color theme utilizing a variety of dried seed pods combined with magnolia foliage. Gold and pink were featured in the reception room and in the dining area. The refreshment table in the bay window, overlaid with a pink cloth, was centered with a crystal and silver epergne holding frosted fruits in pink tints and matching candles in silver candelabrum. A silver "wassail bowl" was used on the table, and delicious party dainties were served. Of special interest was the white flocked Christmas tree trimmed with colorful corsages.

Eighty callers attended between the appointed hours.

SUPPER PARTY

The annual supper party given by members of the Tallulah Golf Club auxiliary complimentary to their husbands was one of the festive events of the holiday season. The gala gathering on the evening of December 14 took place at the country club, which was elaborately decorated by a committee composed of Mrs. Howard Sevier, Mrs. W. M. Morris, Mrs. Bobby Joe Lee, Mrs. George Batchelor, Mrs. Richard Hodges, and Mrs. Travis McNeel.

A white, silver and gold theme was effectively carried out with magnolia and palmetto foliage. The palmetto leaves, sprayed with gold and glitter, were fashioned into huge medallions and placed on the wide mantels between silver candelabra holding gleaming candles. A beautifully decorated white Christmas tree was the focal point on the speakers table.

A turkey dinner was served by the hostess committee, Mrs. Ralph Lee, Mrs. Robert Gaumnitz, Miss Jennie Scurlia, Mrs. Bruce Clark, and Mrs. R. H. Horn.

Mrs. Malcolm Sevier, outgoing president of the auxiliary president of the auxiliary president and gave the welcome address. Mrs. E. B. Schlicker presented appreciation gifts to Mrs. Sevier and Mrs. Ruth Green, and to Mrs. Ed Shamblin, for the best attendance at meetings throughout the year. Dr. H. S. Province, president of the golf club, presented door prizes to Mrs. Robert Eastburn and Joe Milton Clark.

In conclusion the one hundred twenty-five guests joined in singing familiar Christmas carols.

Monroe Dental Assistants Have Christmas Party

Annual Christmas party was held by the Monroe Dental Assistants Society, Tuesday night, December 20 at the Paragon club.

Those attending were Ruth Fleming, Elizabeth McConnell, Katie Sanford, Pat Brumley, Leo Darby, JoAnn Barber, Martha Tanner, Linda Walker, Louise Brown, Bonnie Richardson, Pat Coggins, Bobbie Bradford, Evelyn Simmons, Erma Boyd, Lella Fuller, Vivian Agnew, Venice Preston, Lois Davis, Ruth Bruce, Frances Weir and LaVaine Lindsay.

Your guests are coming to extend holiday greetings, not for a meal. Small sandwiches, for cocktails along with nuts and candy will provide a good nibble.

A Christmas morning gathering can be quite a treat. Invite guests around 10 a.m. Cups and saucers, small plates, coffee pot, cream and sugar are all that will be required.

After the guests have gone only a few things will require dish-washing.

Family Gathering Seems Miraculous To Author

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

This is one day when it would seem that no one would notice the column. Like making motions in the dark; who is there to see them? Today, who is there to read?

YOUR PROBLEMS

Woman Should Order Sister-In-Law To Move

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am 12 years old and having a big fight with my parents. They think I should go to bed at 8:30 at night during the week. All the good TV shows go on then and I don't get any entertainment all night. Please answer in the paper and tell me what you think of parents who like to watch TV themselves but don't let their kids watch. — TREATED TERRIBLE

Dear Terrible: You say "all the good shows go on after 8:30." Like what? If you tell me which "good" shows you want to stay up for I'll write to your parents in your behalf—if I agree.

I haven't seen many TV shows of late worth looking at—day "or" night. Some excellent ones like Mr. Wizard, Kukla, Fran and Ollie and The Search were shown off to make way for more shoot-em ups and murder stories. You rattled the wrong cage, Junior.

Cookies For Santa An Old Custom

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — A child who puts cookies out for Santa Claus on Christmas Eve is perpetuating a custom that predates the holiday itself.

The cookie custom first started when confections were served to Roman senators during the pre-Christian festival of Saturn, says the Pan-American Coffee Bureau.

In Norway, Sweden and Denmark the Christmas snacks were originally offered to protect one's home from mischief by the gnomes who bring presents.

Sweden's modern Julmunt is a red-costumed, white-bearded little man, a congenial counterpart of Santa Claus. But legend says he once guarded Swedish farms, and had to be wooed with a big bowl of porridge to guarantee the safety of farm buildings and productivity of farm animals for the coming year.

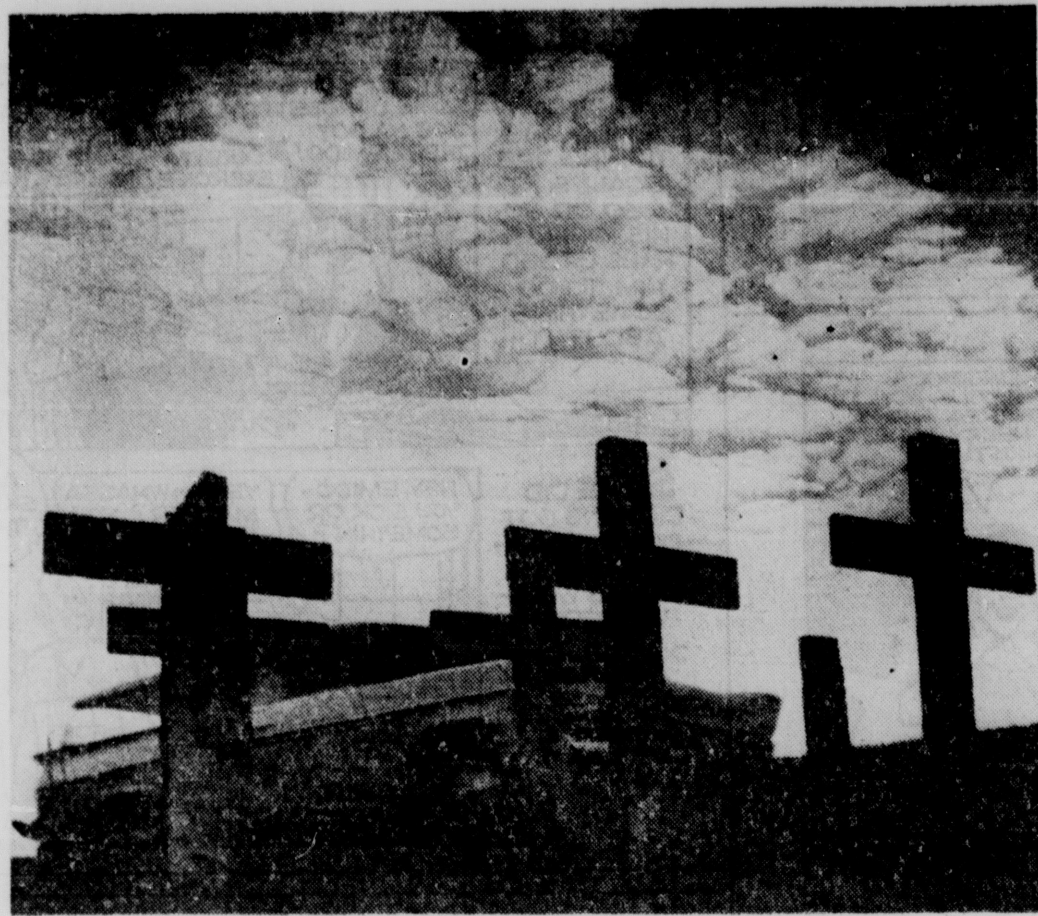

In pre-Christian days, nomadic Laplanders in northern Sweden made a sacrifice to Yuletide people who were believed to fly over the earth on Christmas Eve.

To ward off danger, the Lapps fasted that night. The food they would have eaten, plus bits of their Christmas dinner, were put into a boat-shaped basket that was hung in a tree about a gunshot's distance from the family hut.

Denmark's gift-carrier is a gnome called Jule-nisse. He is left risengrod, or rice pudding, with an extra lump of butter, a favorite dessert of Danish children.

In southern Greece and the Tyrol, Christmas Eve snacks take on religious significance. In the former, special flat loaves of bread are left on the dinner table at night in the belief that Christ or St. Basil will come to eat. And in the Tyrol, a pan of milk is left out for the Christ child and His mother.

THESE FIVE CROSSES alongside U.S. Highway 31 north of Montgomery, Ala., mark the spot where five persons have died in automobile accidents. Safety authorities are appealing to motorists to take every precaution during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. (AP Wirephoto)

Thirty-five members of the Ferriday Garden Club and several guests were present for a Christmas luncheon held Thursday at the private dining room of Cornett's Cafe.

The table was appointed with Christmas arrangements.

All business was set aside, and a Christmas program was presented by Miss Myra Smith and Mrs. Marjorie Lambdin of Natchez, owners of ante-bellum homes there. Miss Smith gave Christmas readings and Mrs. Lambdin showed slides of holiday decorations.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The Ferriday Woman's Club held a Christmas meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. B. Browne, with Mrs. Pearl Fleming as co-hostess.

Business of the club was discussed, and it was decided that the club would sponsor a family that is in need of help. A box was prepared for a needy family to be delivered by two of the club members on Christmas Eve.

After the business session, the program was turned over to Mrs. J. W. Greathouse, who presented a program entitled "Customs of Christmas." Taking part were Mrs. Henry Staggs, and Mrs. Greathouse.

The meeting was then adjourned and the Christmas party and exchange of gifts was enjoyed.

They are all good looking in my eyes and they are all good children. They are a blessing to their parents and to their fond grandmother.

It is when we are all together for this holiday that I give thanks for my great good fortune. I wish the same happiness and joy to all of you who have had one minute to sit down and read this column. A Merry Christmas and God bless you all.

Russia Accused Of Violating 1954 Armistice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Friday accused Russia of violating the 1954 Indo-China armistice and brusquely rejected a Soviet proposal for a new Geneva conference to end the civil war in Laos.

The U.S. position was spelled out by State Department spokesman Lincoln White. He said Russia wanted to sit in judgment on the East-West power struggle which the Reds themselves had provoked in the tiny southeast Asian kingdom.

White also said the Kremlin was in "double violation" of the 1954 Geneva agreements which ended the bloody Indo-China war—first by sending arms to Communist forces in Laos and second by ferrying them in through North Viet Nam.

Post Office Set To Close Today

West Monroe's post office will close at noon today and remain closed through Monday, the postmaster announced yesterday.

Postmaster Homer Roak pointed out that the regular hours will be resumed Tuesday morning and that this same schedule will be followed New Year's weekend.

Roak complimented the public for their "fine cooperation" in mailing early for Christmas.

He said that mail volume is back to normal and that this is the first time in years the Christmas rush has been over by Dec. 23. The Morning World was also thanked for its publicity urging early mailing.

Man Arrested On Bill Jumping Charge

Monroe police Friday reported the arrest of 52-year-old Gus Edwards on a charge of theft for the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department.

Sheriff's deputies said Edwards, who was arrested Friday morning at the Globe Hotel which he gave as his address, was wanted on a charge of jumping a board bill.

Amateurish Theft Nets Little Cash

Less than $25 was taken from a safe at Monroe Concrete Company, 101 South 29th St., during Thursday night when burglars entered the building after breaking a window, the Monroe Police Department reported Friday.

It was "definitely" an amateur job, officers believed.

District Court Session Brief

A 30-year-old Columbia man was sentenced to five years in prison Friday in a brief session of Fourth District Court.

Judge David I. Garrett sentenced Fred Orville McDonald, 30, Box 265, Columbia, to five years in the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola on a charge of simple burglary of Hargus Enterprises, 414 Walnut.

He drew a three year concurrent term, on a charge of forging a $94.20 check.

Merry Christmas... Merry Christmas... Merry Christmas...

We can't help repeating and repeating our most sincere wishes for a truly memorable holiday.

Just before we put away our whiskers and "ho-ho-hos" we want to say what fun it has been to help provide the many gifts that you have selected... (or have had selected for you)... Gifts that on Christmas Day will speak of love and affection... However, if colors, sizes or choices are not quite right we will be most happy to help you make a suitable exchange

Of Violating
1954 Armistice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Friday accused Russia of violating the 1954 Indo-China armistice and brusquely rejected a Soviet proposal for a new Geneva conference to end the civil war in Laos.

The U.S. position was spelled out by State Department spokesman Lincoln White. He said Russia wanted to sit in judgment on the East-West power struggle which the Reds themselves had provoked in the tiny southeast Asian kingdom.

White also said the Kremlin was in "double violation" of the 1954 Geneva agreements which ended the bloody Indo-China war—first by sending arms to Communist forces in Laos and second by ferrying them in through North Viet Nam.

Quite cold air for this time of the year continued to cover the northeast quadrant of the nation by evening Friday. Mid-afternoon temperatures at around zero to the 10 degree mark ranged from Minnesota and northeast Iowa eastward into the Great Lakes region and upper Ohio valley. Freezing levels were recorded as far south as the Carolinas and northern parts of the Central Gulf States. Readings in the 40s or 50s revealed across remaining sections of the country with a few exceptions. Near freezing occurred in the upper Plateau region of the far west and over the Rockies while fairly warm 60s were found along the southeastern part of Texas and in Southern California and southwest Arizona where warm 70 degrees temperatures were coupled with abundant sunshine.

The nation's main belt of precipitation occurred in the form of snow spreading eastward into the upper half of the Mississippi Valley in association with a warm front extending from Central Missouri north northwestward through the Eastern Dakotas. Moderate snow fell at times over the east central Mississippi Valley. Elsewhere, snow flurries lingered in the Great Lakes region and occasional rain dampened portions of south central Texas. In the Pacific Northwest, a persistent fog clung to the interior valleys with brief snows observed in eastern Washington. Sunny skies bright-

Man Arrested On Bill Jumping Charge

Monroe police Friday reported the arrest of 52-year-old Gus Edwards on a charge of theft for the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department.

Sheriff's deputies said Edwards, who was arrested Friday morning at the Globe Hotel which he gave as his address, was wanted on a charge of jumping a board bill.

Amateurish Theft Nets Little Cash

Less than $25 was taken from a safe at Monroe Concrete Company, 101 South 29th St., during Thursday night when burglars entered the building after breaking a window, the Monroe Police Department reported Friday.

It was "definitely" and amateur job, officers believed.

District Court Session Brief

A 30-year-old Columbia man was sentenced to five years in prison Friday in a brief session of Fourth District Court.

Judge David I. Garrett sentenced Fred Orville McDonald, 30, Box 265, Columbia, to five years in the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola on a charge of simple burglary of Hargus Enterprises, 414 Walnut. He drew a three year concurrent term, on a charge of forging a $94.20 check.
